WARNS PURGE PERILS LIBERTY

FRENCH PREMIER WARNS 40 HOUR WEEK MUST GO

Moves to Speed Up Defense Work.

BY EDMOND TAYLOR.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS, Aug. 21.—Jolting the country out of its vacation time sluggishness, Premier Edouard Daladier in a radio address tonight warned the workers of France that the 40 hour week must be sacrificed in the interests of military and economic defense.

Premier Daladier.

"Totalitarian states are arming without any consideration for working hours," he said. "Other democracies which are trying to return to prosperity and assure their defense have adopted the 48 hour week. Is France, a country which is both poorer and more menaced than they, going to compromise her future by continuing vain disputes?"

Employers Must Have Leeway.

The premier insisted he was not advocating cancellation of the 40 hour week, but merely "modification." In industries interested in national defense, a 48 hour week must prevail, he declared. Employers in other branches must be able to increase the working hours up to that figure if they deem it necessary, he said.

Furthermore, the premier continued, these extra hours of work must not be paid for at the present "prohibitive" rates, but on a "reasonable" overtime basis.

Daladier said he was working on a plan for economic recovery which would include both a modification of the 40-hour week and lightening of the tax burden. This plan will have to be submitted to parliament either at the regular fall session or in a special session if the premier chooses to call one because his power to govern by decree now has expired.

National Income Lower.

His speech was a plea for business and a warning that the crisis in French economy will last as long as capitalists are unable to realize a fair profit on their investments. He declared notably that while salaries in terms of buying power are approximately at the pre-war level, the national income has diminished by over one-third and the earning power of capital invested in real estate or securities has declined 45 per cent.

"In no nation of the world except France and Mexico is the 40 hour week a normal work week," Daladier said.

"The road to safety is work. The 40 hour week must be changed as much because of national necessity as because of the general European situation."

Furthermore, he declared, exchange control or devaluation of the franc "certainly would make precarious and possibly ruin" France's collaboration with the "great democracies."

Troops Unload Ships.

The government today decided to impose a settlement of the Marseilles dock strike where the issue is the refusal of freight handlers to work nights, Sundays or holidays. Troops were called out to unload ships which brought perishable vegetables from Algeria.

All this has a great political importance because it means that in the chronic conflict between business and labor, Daladier definitly has taken the side of business despite his leftist majority in parliament.

Political propaganda of the various parties unfortunately has bestowed on the forty hour week a symbolic value far beyond its real importance either to business or labor, so Daladier's decision was a political sensation.

Rips Popular Front.

Daladier's decision to change the work week meant he had decided at least temporarily to tear out the main plank of the Popular Front program. The former Socialist premier, Leon Blum, who headed the first Popular Front government, pushed through the 40 hour week law on the crest of a vast strike wave in 1936. Blum's Socialists still are the largest group in the chamber.

Battle Creek, Mich., Aug. 21.—(AP)—The Lincoln district school near Union City will open tomorrow—a week earlier than usual—so Mrs. Riley Bryan, a teacher, can go deer hunting with her husband this fall. Mrs. Bryan induced the school board to change the schedule so she can have a week's vacation during the hunting season.

BANDITS WIND UP CRIME CAREERS AS MERE TRAMPS

Hunted Two Months Through Midwest.

Dallas, Tex., Aug. 21.—[Special.]—Floyd Hamilton and Huron [Ted] Walters reached the end of their criminal careers here this morning as a pair of tramps. Dallas police captured them and ended a two month chase by federal agents.

Both outlaws eluded G-men shortly before city detectives arrested them. Hamilton outran one federal agent who fired a shotgun blast at him, and Walters simply told the agents good night and walked out of an apartment where a trap had been set for the two outlaws.

Federal agents had considered Hamilton and Walters desperate criminals after they robbed a bank in Bradley, Ark., of $685 last June 7. To Dallas police, who have known the pair since they were boys, they merely were a couple of petty larceny thieves.

G-Men Wait in Apartment.

Last night two G-men secreted themselves in the apartment of Elmer Wall, a cousin of Walters. Wall was not at home. The agents believed Hamilton and Walters might come there for assistance. They were right. Walters knocked at the door and was greeted by a federal agent.

Walters told the agent his name was Wall and went in. He did not tell them he was expecting Hamilton. While he waited the agents chatted with him. Finally Hamilton knocked at the door. The G-men recognized Hamilton and he ran from the building.

One federal agent grabbed a shotgun and pursued the outlaw. He fired one shot, and a buckshot pellet struck Hamilton in one leg. Then Hamilton disappeared in the darkness. Farther down the street the federal agent saw a man he thought was the outlaw. He chased the man until he caught him. But the man was not Hamilton.

Outlaw Says Good-by.

The G-man then returned to Wall's apartment. Walters was still there, talking with the other federal agent. After a few minutes Walters said he had to leave. He said good night and walked out.

Soon afterward members of a city detective squad recognized Walters on the street and arrested him. Two hours later another squad went to the Trinity river bottoms and captured Hamilton. Neither was armed, although Hamilton's pockets were full of pistol ammunition.

Accused of dozens of robberies, including a $34,000 pay roll holdup in Wood River, Ill., and several kidnapings, they had $11.24 between them when arrested. Their clothes were tattered and neither had bathed or shaved for days.

Pair Admit Holdups.

Will Fritz, chief of detectives, said Hamilton admitted that he and Walters had committed numerous holdups and had stolen many automobiles. They denied the Illinois pay roll robbery, however.

One kidnaping attributed to the two outlaws occurred July 30 in Chicago. John Keating was seized in front of his home, 6102 Dorchester avenue. He was driven in his automobile to a field near Barrington, Ill., where he was bound and dumped out. The kidnapers took $11 from him and fled in his automobile.

Both Hamilton and Walters are ex-convicts. Hamilton served a term in Leavenworth for having harbored his brother, Ray, a member of the Clyde Barrow-Bonnie Parker gang. Ray was electrocuted in Texas in 1935 for slaying a guard in a prison break. Barrow and his cigar-smoking woman, Bonnie, were shot to death on a road in Louisiana in 1934.

Walters Has Long Record.

Walters, now 25 years old, first was arrested in 1928 for theft. He won a suspended sentence. Between 1931 and 1936 he served two terms in prison for theft. Hamilton is 30 years old. He was arrested frequently, but was convicted only once.

Their last criminal rampage started in April after they were arrested in Sherman, Tex., for theft. They es-

JUNGLE STORIES

The Moscow Buzzard and the Jackal convinced the Purge Cat that the Eagle's nest should be destroyed. "Those birds are too independent," croaked the Buzzard. "They thumb their wings at you every time you snarl must legislation at them." The Moscow Buzzard was a crafty scavenger who fed on destruction. Only by destruction could he exist. If the Moscow Buzzard could contrive to destroy the American Eaglets, then he would become the head bird; but as long as they survived, he was only a buzzard. So by careful petting and yessing, the Purge Cat was persuaded to liquidate the Eaglets.

But the heroic little fellows fought valiantly. Do you see the surgical tape covering the Black Leopard's complexion? Purge has been beaked in six places—Pennsylvania, Iowa, Indiana, Texas, Missouri, and Virginia. The large patch farther along was a result of a-backing into a blackBerry bramble down TVA way. Do you see the American Eagle soaring in the distance? She is coming to the rescue of her brood.

Questions—Do you see the beautiful Skunk? He is one of the hundred-per-scenters. See the Cheetah in hiding. The shy little alibier is endeavoring to change his spots. Do you see the Taxpayer Ants packing provisions for the GrassHopkins? One of the tiny slaves is reading the WPA signs—"We Pay And .. We Pay And .. We Pay And ?" There stands Old Doc Stork with his precious package. "Somebody here order this thing?" he inquired, looking down his long beak at the three-headed Purge Kitten. Isn't it a cute monstrosity? But it may not live. How well it would look preserved in a bottle in the Social Science Department of Columbia or Harvard university. Such things are appreciated there.

Picket-Thugs Raid Bakery; Attack Women

Last month bakery owners, organized as the Associated Retail Bakers of Chicago, voted to close all their shops on Sunday.

Yesterday the south side shop of one member, who defied the organization's will by doing business seven days a week, was invaded by more than twenty slugger-pickets. They slapped two girls and knocked them down. They handled the proprietor's wife roughly. Police were called. They routed the pickets, but made no arrests.

The bakery, at 4450 South Kedzie avenue, is owned by Erich Weber. He is one of the directors of the bakers' association. It was organized about six months ago and has about 500 members.

Weber's wife, Louise, and the clerks, Miss Sylvia Sixton, 2641 South Lawndale avenue, and Miss Jean Moravec, 2408 South Harding avenue, were alone in the bakery yesterday when the pickets swarmed in. The women said they came in a body, and began shouting about the place being open on Sunday.

When the crowd surged toward the back of the shop where the ovens are located the women blocked their path. Miss Sixton and Miss Moravec were promptly felled. Mrs. Weber's glasses were broken.

Claims Others Kept Open.

"I closed my shop for several Sundays after the association voted, Weber said later. "Then I learned that other shops in my neighborhood were staying open on Sunday. Three weeks ago I opened on Sundays.

"Since then my place has been picketed. I have a union shop. The bakers work five days a week, and the clerks six days. The placards carried by the pickets protest only against Sunday opening, but many persons are led to believe that the shop is nonunion. It isn't. I have no quarrel with the union."

Weber declared that the bakers' association had ordered the picketing and that he would withdraw his membership.

EQUATORIAL COUPLE AT ZOO FINALLY GETS RIGHT ON CALENDAR

The calendar and the ostriches at last are in agreement at the Chicago Zoölogical park in Brookfield. Omar, the big black Cape ostrich, and Fatima, his gray lady, have decided August is August whether you live north or south of the equator.

In previous years they have acted as though they thought August came in February, and in keeping with an old equatorial custom, have always gone in for egg-hatching at that time. But now, in mid-August, they are sitting on nine eggs. Fatima, whose gray feathers merge with the rockwork, keeps them warm by day, and Omar, whose black feathers merge with the night, warms them from dusk to dawn.

"We've always had hopes they would adjust themselves to the north temperate zone," said Robert Bean, assistant director, "and at last they have."

WINSHIP PALACE BARS SLACKS AND BREECH CLOTHS

[Copyright: 1938: By the New York Times.]

SAN JUAN, Porto Rico, Aug. 21.—Beach slacks and breech cloths on tourists may be all right for comfort, but they are not in Spanish tradition. Enrique Ortega, director of Gov. Blanton D. Winship's sponsored institute of tourism today felt called upon to take steps.

A printed card will be presented to visitors. It contains the following requests: "Visitors to La Fortaleza, the official residence of the governor of Porto Rico, are kindly requested to observe certain formalities when visiting the official palace.

"Gentlemen are requested to wear coats and neckties. Ladies are asked to wear skirts rather than shorts or slacks. Thank you! Institute of tourism."

Sunburn easily? Well, it isn't surprising. Field museum geologists have just arranged an exhibition showing that the sun's rays are so powerful they shatter solid rock in the deserts and upon mountain tops.

Blazing Boat Adrift in Lake Perils Yachts

A blazing cabin cruiser, cast adrift by an explosion, imperiled nearby craft in Chicago harbor off Monroe street early today. Two other cruisers were set afire.

Two women aboard the drifting yacht, the Hauki, a 42 foot cabin cruiser, were slightly burned. Their two men companions escaped injury.

The injured were Miss Ruth Ellstam, 37 years old, 5216 North Paulina street, a secretary, and Miss Margaret Hastings, 30, of 2300 Giddings street, employed as a governess in the Winnetka home of Harry Balaban, movie theater executive.

Floods Carburetor.

They boarded the Hauki, which was tied up at the Chicago Yacht club pier, with Roy Boyd, 39 years old, owner of the boat, and another man, whose name was not learned.

Boyd, an insurance broker, had made his home on the cruiser. In trying to start the motor he flooded the carburetor. Gas fumes collected. A sudden explosion occurred, which burned Miss Ellstam on the face and hands and singed Miss Hastings' eyebrows.

The two couples scrambled to the pier and safety. Yacht club attendants called the fire department. Two engine trucks arrived, but by that time the Hauki, which had been loosened from her moorings, had drifted out about 100 feet. A dozen boats in her path were imperiled and two—the Say-It, a 25 foot cruiser, and the Jaral II., a 40 foot cruiser—caught fire.

Firemen Use Rowboats.

Firemen rowed out in borrowed boats and towed the burning Hauki to shore. They made it fast so they could reach it with hose lines. The effort was wasted. The harbor water was too muddy to clear through the delicate pumping machinery of the fire trucks.

The fireboat Fred Busse arrived at this time and put out the flames. It also quenched the fires on the Say-It and the Jaral II. The Hauki, which was valued at $7,500, sank in the shallow water.

Calls on G.O.P. to Help George Win in Georgia

Atlanta, Ga., Aug. 21.—(AP)—Active Republican support for Senator Walter F. George of Vienna to promote a Democratic split in 1940 stirred mixed reaction in Georgia today and heightened national significance of the state's forthcoming Democratic primary.

President Roosevelt made it an outstanding test for his administration ten days ago when he called for George's defeat, and endorsed Lawrence S. Camp, United States attorney of Atlanta, 100 per cent Roosevelt supporter.

James W. Arnold, Republican national committeeman, brought 1940 boldly to the fore in Athens last night when he disclosed he was urging Republicans to enter the Democratic fight and back George because "it is absolutely necessary . . . that there be a split in the national convention of the Democratic party in 1940" and "the fate of this split rests on the shoulders of a few men."

George Refuses Comment.

Senator George refused comment on Arnold's move and his headquarters indicated he probably would take no cognizance of it.

Camp said: "If there ever was any doubt that the President was right in stating that Senator George belonged in the same group with the Republicans, that doubt has now been removed."

Although Arnold's move was interpreted by some political observers as the first positive step toward a Republican right wing Democrat coalition, Arnold would not discuss this.

Clint Hager, chairman of the Republican state central committee, declined comment on Arnold's move, but estimated the current Republican strength in Georgia at 60,000, and said he felt they could vote in the Sept. 14 primary if they wished.

No Party Registration.

Charles S. Reid, state Democratic executive committee chairman, said the question of voters' eligibility would be one that would have to be settled by local election managers. Georgia does not have a party registration law or demand proof of party membership to qualify as a voter.

Oral assertion of Democratic affiliation and a pledge to support the nominees chosen in the primary are required, Reid said, but it would be up to the local officials to judge the sincerity of these declarations if they were made by a known Republican.

Arnold ran against George for the senate in 1932, polling 18,151 votes to 234,490 for the Democrat. In 1936 Alf Landon received nearly 37,000 presidential ballots in Georgia, while Roosevelt polled about 255,000.

Only Two Organizations.

The winner of the primary race will be the candidate with the best political organization. There are only two worthy of the name in the state and both are trying to keep out of the Roosevelt-George fight. One of them is almost certain to be drawn in within a short time.

This is the organization of Gov. E.

TYDINGS BLASTS VOTE DICTATION BY ROOSEVELT

Move to Hamstring Congress Charged.

BY CHESLY MANLY.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]
(Picture on back page.)

Washington, D. C., Aug. 21.—[Special.]—Senator Millard E. Tydings [D., Md.] tonight accused President Roosevelt of trying to destroy the independence and usefulness of congress because it would not permit him to weaken the United States Supreme court.

Senator Tydings.

Defying the President's attempt to purge him from the Democratic party and drive him out of office, Senator Tydings told a radio audience that the free state of Maryland would remain free.

"Maryland will not permit her star in the flag to be purged from the constellation of the states," he said.

Precedes Charlie McCarthy.

Senator Tydings' speech was broadcast from Washington and from all radio stations in Maryland. Ironically—if not by design—the address in which Tydings assailed his opponent, Representative David J. Lewis, as a 100 per cent rubber stamp preceded the Charlie McCarthy program.

The ventriloquist's dummy is the popular symbol for congressional candidates hand picked by the Roosevelt administration in the current undertaking to purge the Democratic party of all but yes-men.

Of three Democrats in congress personally denounced by President Roosevelt, the fluent, debonair Tydings—a world war hero and a senator from Maryland since 1926—was the third to accept the challenge.

Purge Aimed at People.

Unlike Senator Walter F. George of Georgia and Representative John O'Connor of New York, chairman of the house rules committee, he did not use the terms "dictatorship," "monocracy," "monarchy," and "despotism" in his reply to the President.

He did, however, use the term "seekers after absolute authority." And he said the purge, if successful, would destroy "the sovereignty of the people themselves in their guaranteed and well-defined constitutional privileges and prerogatives."

President Roosevelt attacked Senator Tydings and Representative O'Connor in a White House blast last Tuesday. He called them betrayers who had given lip-service to the Roosevelt policies in the 1936 campaign and then knifed the President in congress.

Waits 5 Days to Answer.

Senator Tydings waited five days for his answer. He wanted to give the President's attack time to sink in and to have an opportunity to judge the voters' reaction to it. Apparently he found the reaction in his favor.

"I am confident," he said, "that on Sept. 12 the people of Maryland will act, and act decisively to let the federal administration and all the people of the country know that the Maryland free state shall remain free, that Maryland's traditional rights will be safeguarded and preserved."

Tydings said that during the dark days of the reconstruction era, after the civil war, voters in Maryland and other states had to march between lines of fixed bayonets to register their choice at the polls for national representatives.

"Today," he said, "first rumors, then statements, and finally action, have come to tell us that the sovereignty of our state, the right of our people to pass judgment on the representatives, without fear, intimidation or outside interference, is again being called into question."

Terrorism Real Purpose.

Discussing a "purge" of Tydings' sponsored federal appointees—which Eugene Casey, Lewis spokesman, asserted yesterday was planned—the senator said:

"Of course, the purge is directed to the elimination of the high federal officers. The real purpose of these threats to leading federal officials is to intimidate and terrorize thousands of citizens of Maryland who hold minor positions under these officers, many of whom earn slender salaries upon which they support themselves and families."

President Roosevelt and his advisers, Tydings continued, have determined to destroy the political lives of all those who "for reasons however right or sound differed with the administration as to the kind and character of legislation needed for the promotion of the best interests of the people in a period of financial disaster. unemployment, poverty and nation-wide distress and suffering.

Cites Fight on NRA.

"It did not matter, it counted for naught in the judgment of the Presidential advisers, that some of the objections to legislation were so well taken that the administration itself subsequently admitted its error. Notably was this true in the abandoned and discredited NRA, which many of us had opposed from the beginning and which the President himself later repudiated in part. Nor did it matter that in the legislative process many mistakes otherwise overlooked were found and corrected.

"Nor did it matter that the differing viewpoints actually represented the ideas of great sections of American people, who were entitled to have their opinions heard and considered; who demanded amendments to proposed legislation in fairness to themselves.

"When those amendments were denied their representatives could not in good conscience support the proposals offered. The decision of the President and his advisers was finally made that those who had failed or refused to accept the orders of the administration were to be driven out of public life."

Rubber Stamp Promised.

Senator Tydings recalled that Representative Lewis first announced himself as a candidate to succeed himself in the house, but later, after a conference at the White House, announced that he would run for the senate.

"For his part, Mr. Lewis has tried to make it crystal clear that if he is nominated and elected to represent Maryland in the United States senate his vote on any and all questions will be the personal property of the President of the United States," Tydings declared.

It became apparent, the senator continued, that the voters of Maryland were not going to be won over by Lewis' appeal of a 100 per cent rubber stamp, so it was decided to put the full weight of the Roosevelt administration behind his candidacy.

"Purge" Called Foreign Word.

"The word 'purge' began to creep into the Maryland newspapers—a word foreign to our ears in our dealings with each other—a word which we are accustomed to read only in connection with stories of wholesale assassinations in foreign countries," Tydings said.

"Over here that word has been used, so far, only to convey the idea of an effort by those in power to drive out of public office those who may have ideas of their own or those who, for any reason, may not be willing to surrender their convictions and consciences to the keeping of seekers after absolute authority."

Senator Tydings said the constitution of the United States contemplated that the people of Maryland elect their own senators; that it established three branches of government—executive, legislative, and judicial, each to remain forever independent of the others. Maryland, he said, incorporated in her fundamental law a provision for free elections and the same separation of executive, legislative, and judicial powers.

Provisions Never Changed.

"We Marylanders have never changed these provisions," he said. "We still believe in them in Maryland. For generation after generation we have been told that the freedom of the people of our country depends upon our success in keeping one branch of the government from absorbing or usurping the functions of the other branches.

"Yet the chief executive not long ago attempted to alter the judicial system of the nation. That attempt caused revolt in congress and throughout the country, despite the fact that the Democratic President had an overwhelming majority of Democrats in the senate and house of representatives.

"The attempt failed because there were sufficient senators and congressmen who put love of country above all other considerations.

Voters Asked to Choose.

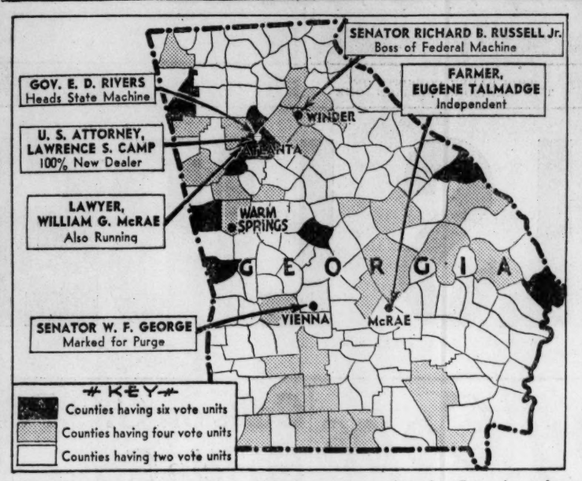
"I ask again, what are you going to do about it? This is your fight, fellow Marylanders, as well as mine. As for me, I can lose the office I hold and the opportunity to continue to serve you, the people of Maryland, in the senate.

"But all of us are facing the loss of our right to be represented in the federal congress by representatives of our own selection, who can vote our views and those of no other.

"If we lose that right we surrender the sovereign authority of our state. We destroy its traditions. We create a precedent which will weaken other states. We place the representative branch of the government under the control of the chief executive.

"When that is done, the Supreme court issue will be renewed and the next time, if the President controls the selection of the congress, the fight for independent judiciary will be lost, because the fight for independence in congress will be lost."

Vote Units in Georgia Counties



Designation of the vote units in each county in Georgia, where President Roosevelt's attempt at purge will get another test in primary on Sept. 14. Map also shows the homes of the four candidates for the United States senate—George, Camp, Talmadge, and McRae—and names the heads of the two Democratic machines, Rivers and Russell.

Atlanta, Ga., Aug. 21.—[Special.]—The heated race for the United States senate in which President Roosevelt seeks to defeat Senator Walter F. George is complicated by Georgia's peculiar system of voting in the Democratic primary, which will be held on Sept. 14.

Under this system a state-wide minority may swing the result in a number of counties and effect the nomination. For voting purposes the counties are divided into vote units. Eight large counties have six vote units each. Thirty counties have four vote units each, and 121 counties each have two vote units.

The candidate who receives a plurality in any county gets all its vote units and his opponents get none. There are 410 vote units, of which 206 will nominate without a run off. The rural areas dominate the state.

BARBARA'S MATE QUITS VENICE FOR CITY IN GERMANY

The Danish nobleman had seen his wife here several times apparently on the most friendly terms, although they are legally separated. He twice had postponed his departure. Yesterday he went swimming with his wife.

Countess Barbara will remain in Venice until Aug. 30 and then leave for Rome.

These Burglars All Set to Trim Their Victims Good

Frank Wegmann, whose barber shop is at 755 West 57th street, informed the Englewood police yesterday that he expected a new competitor to open soon. "Somebody," he said, "broke into my place and took five razors, three clippers, six pair of shears, and my .32 caliber pistol."

URGES GEORGIA REPUBLICANS TO VOTE FOR GEORGE

Asserts Democratic Split Vital Matter.

D. Rivers of Atlanta, who is seeking reëlection, having declined an invitation to run against Senator George. Political observers believe voters resent President Roosevelt's demand for defeat of George and have turned in greater numbers against Camp. These observers believe that the President's advisers may try to use the Rivers organization against George and further complicate the situation since George and Rivers are tied together in campaign posters.

The other organization is headed by Senator Richard B. Russell Jr. of Winder, and is made up of persons who were pay rollers when he was governor and of federal jobholders he has been able to place in the last five years. A lot of federal jobholders also are indebted to Senator George so it may be impossible to use much of this power to purge George.

Praised for Hands Off Policy.

Meanwhile, an editorial in Gov. River's campaign paper, praising him for his hands off course, was viewed as indirect answer to the question "Whom will Rivers back?"

The editorial was written by Frank Dennis of the Eatonton Messenger and was reprinted in a prominent position in the first issue of the governor's four page campaign organ, "Your Program."

Attracting attention in Dennis' editorial was a section which read: "Gov. Rivers says in effect, 'I am a Democrat; so are you. I want your support, but as to the other candidates, vote as you please.'"

In some quarters the attack on Senator George is expected to swing increased support to former Gov. Eugene Talmadge, of McRae, the third candidate. Talmadge, a farmer, is an independent and a severe critic of Roosevelt and his schemes. William G. McRae, an Atlanta attorney, is the fourth candidate.

Returns to Band

Mrs. Victor Aloysius Meyers, wife of Washington's lieutenant governor, and their children, Vic Jr. and Mary Louise.

And that's why Victor Aloysius Meyers, who hopped from a dance band platform into the lieutenant governor's chair eight years ago, hopped back last night, temporarily at least.

Vic Meyers.

He led his orchestra in a Seattle ballroom debut and said hereafter he was going to keep one foot on the political rostrum and the other on the orchestra platform, so that he and Mrs. Vic and Vic Jr. and little Mary Louise can eat. Meyers' salary as lieutenant governor is $1,200 a year.

Meyers philosophized that music hath charms to soothe the empty tummy. "I'm tired of playing second fiddle in the state government," he said between selections hot and sweet.

Hungary Offered Equality in Arms by Little Entente

DEFEATED POPE DISCUSSES PLANS WITH ROOSEVELT

May Run as Independent in Idaho in Fall.

BY WILLARD EDWARDS.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Hyde Park, N. Y., Aug. 21.—[Special.]—Senator James P. Pope, Idaho Democrat and 100 per cent Roosevelt supporter whose defeat in the primary recently stunned administration politicians, conferred at length today with President Roosevelt.

"I have not yet made up my mind on whether to run as an independent candidate in Idaho in the fall elections," Senator Pope said after the discussion. "I will make the decision soon."

It is believed that the President urged Pope to enter the race as an independent. The senator was a luncheon guest at the Roosevelt summer estate and later accompanied the President on a motor ride which wound up at Quaker Hill, N. Y. There the President and Senator Pope watched a soft ball game between a team composed of Washington correspondents and secret service men which was pitted against a team made up by a radio announcer.

Says Republicans Beat Him.

Senator Pope made no secret of his bitterness about his defeat. He said Republicans entered the Democratic primary to insure the nomination of his opponent, D. Worth Clark. He asserted that 20,000 Republicans voted as Democrats. He was beaten by 3,000 votes.

Another luncheon guest was Aubrey Williams, deputy administrator of the Works Progress administration, who had addressed the world youth congress meeting in Poughkeepsie, N. Y. The congress is under fire as a communistic movement. President Roosevelt has been asked to speak at a meeting but has not yet decided to do so.

Wallace Leaves for Capital.

Secretary of Agriculture Henry A. Wallace departed for Washington after an overnight stay at the President's home. He is expected to announce his plans for dealing with the big wheat surplus tomorrow.

Harry Hopkins, WPA head, arrived at the estate late this afternoon for a discussion of the administration's program. Early callers at Hyde Park have indicated that the President is studying the general effect of his spending-lending program. He is represented as particularly interested in how much activity it may be generating in the supply industries.

YOUTH CONGRESS ASKS A CHANCE TO ANSWER COMMUNISM CHARGE

Poughkeepsie, N. Y., Aug. 21.—(AP)—The World Youth congress today requested that its representatives be permitted to appear in Washington before the house committee investigating un-American activities.

The request was in reply to statements made yesterday by Dr. J. B Matthews, writer and educator, who told the house committee that the youth congress was controled by communists. Joseph Cadden, chairman of the organizing committee of the congress, said the investigators were wasting the taxpayers' money and their own time.

Dr. Matthews also testified that Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt and Dr. Henry N. MacCracken. president of Vassar college, were among prominent Americans who were being exploited by communists.

ADVERTISE IN THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE

YOUTH RALLY AIM OF CONSTITUTION DAY COMMITTEE

Organize Young Patriots on National Scale.

Julius H. Miner.

Chicago's fifth annual observance of Constitution day will be celebrated in a patriotic program in the Chicago Civic Opera house on the night of Sept. 17. This year the Constitution day committee is devoting itself to an added undertaking—the creation of a Young American Patriots movement throughout the country.

The object of this nonpartisan organization is the inculcation in young men and young women of the doctrins of freedom and loyalty for American institutions. The age limits for members will be between 16 and 24 years.

Celebrations Originated Here.

Constitution day celebrations were originated here in 1934 by Julius H. Miner, executive director of the committee. The first observance at Century of Progress that year was attended by 359,000 persons.

The Constitution day committee has a membership of more than 970 of the outstanding citizens of Illinois. A group of members will meet at 12:15 p. m. Thursday in the Palmer house to plan this year's program. Sept. 17 is the 151st anniversary of the constitution.

Mr. Miner and President Walter Dill Scott of Northwestern university, chairman of the committee, sent out a letter yesterday to the committee members.

"All citizens devoted to the American political and social order can now make their devotion effective through the committee," the letters read. "We propose to launch a nation-wide crusade through literature, radio, lectures and educational courses directed against radical and subversive doctrins that have been filtered into the American consciousness by false teachings and insidious propaganda."

Seek Aid of Many Organizations.

The letter then states that the committee will enlist the support and coordinate activities of the American Legion, Veterans of Foreign Wars, Sons and Daughters of the American Revolution, Grand Army of the Republic, Knights of Columbus, Knights Templar, Moose, Rotarians, Elks, Kiwanis, Paul Reveres, Sentinels, Masons, Odd Fellows, Knights of Pythias and other civic, fraternal and patriotic organizations.

"From the prevailing confusion," the letter continues, "we must also find for the youth of America a restoration of faith and the removal of fear and uncertainty for the future.

"Every young man and woman must be convinced that wherever in the world the system of individual liberty has been sustained, mankind has been better clothed, better fed, better housed, has had more leisure and above all, has had more self-respect and greater spiritual contentment. Let them ask the Russian under Stalin, the German under Hitler and the Italian under Mussolini, where individual rights have been subordinated to the iron will of the dictator.

"It is our object to organize Young American Patriots in Chicago and throughout the nation. . . . The hope of the world today is free youths. They are the foundation for a more effective democracy.

"Independent legislators must not submit to the loss of intellectual freedom and unrestrained action. Their spirit of love and independence defies all control and cannot be blueprinted. A subservient congress or a dominated Supreme court is a decisive step towards dictatorship. The welfare of American men and women and the future of our youth are at stake and we must defend those ideals to which the constitution gave expression."

CHURCH TO FIGHT FILMS THAT BACK FALSE DOCTRINS

Cincinnati, O., Aug. 21.—(AP)—Archbishop John T. McNicholas, chairman of the national legion of decencys Episcopal committee on motion pictures, declared the legion would challenge any movie program exploiting false, atheistic, and immoral doctrins.

"Films which portray, approvingly, concepts in philosophies attacking the Christian moral order and the supernatural destiny of man debase humanity, he said. "The legion shall challenge any program using the popular theater screen to exploit such insidious doctrins.

FREEDOM DAZES FOUR CHILDREN FROM GERMANY

Freedom to play, to talk, and to laugh left the four Neuberger children in a happy daze yesterday as they settled down in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Max Korshak, 506 Roscoe street. The Korshaks brought them to Chicago from Nazi Germany. The exciting trip ended Saturday.

Erica Neuberger [Front], Selma Talheimer, Berti Neuberger [Rear], also an immigrant] was overlooked. Joachim Neuberger, 15 years old; his brother, Lothar, 14, and sisters, Erica, 10, and Berti, 12, spent the day getting acquainted with Korshak's grandchildren, Lois and Roy Kornblith, 10 and 8.

The numerical increase in the Korshak family from six to eleven [counting their aunt, Frau

Behind the children were unspoken recollections of life in Sennfield, Germany, where their mother and father are. Joachim, a spokesman despite his meager knowledge of English, was careful not to discuss Nazi persecution of the Jews. Korshak explained that the boy feared reprisals against his parents. He said the children would henceforth lead normal American lives and would not discuss conditions in Germany.

LINDBERGH VISITS SOVIET PLANT.

MOSCOW, Aug. 21.—(AP)—Col. Charles A. Lindbergh today studied soviet technical progress in aviation. He visited soviet Russia's principal airplane motor factory near Moscow and the Tsiam [central institute for aviation motors]. At the latter he saw soviet scientists working on technical problems in 30 test laboratories.

RESUME EFFORTS TODAY TO START N. SHORE TRAINS

Efforts to end the strike of employés of the North Shore railroad, which has kept the lines out of operation since last Tuesday, will be resumed today. The men struck against a 15 per cent wage cut.

Only one tangible compromise has been suggested. This is a proposal by a bondholders' committee, represented by Attorney H. William Ihrig, that the old pay scale be kept for sixty to ninety days, with Receiver A. A. Sprague empowered to pay the workers up to 15 per cent in receiver's certificates.

The company is to let Ihrig know today whether it is willing to present this proposal to the federal court and ask for instructions. [The receivership makes court orders necessary—one was issued to approve the pay cut.] If the order is requested and issued the strikers will still have to vote on it. O. David Zimring, representing the Amalgamated Association of Street and Electric Railway Employés, said he would present the matter to the union without recommendation.

John A. Moffitt, veteran conciliator of the federal department of labor, arrived in Chicago yesterday and will hold a conference today in the hope of getting a settlement.

Seize Neighbor After Two Garages Are Set Afire

Peter Opdlewski, 57 years old, 1930 South Kedzie avenue, was arrested by Lawndale police last night for questioning about fires which attacked two alley garages at 1917 and 1937 South Sawyer avenue. The latter was fired first. James Whitlock, who lives at that address, put out the flames, and while he was doing so, he told police, he saw Opdlewski set fire to the garage at 1917 Sawyer. Opdlewski denied the accusation.

FRANCO'S REPLY IS JUST A STALL, BRITISH BELIEVE

France May Renew Help to Loyalist Side.

BY DAVID DARRAH.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Aug. 21.—The reply of Generalissimo Francisco Franco, Spanish rebel commander, to the British plan for withdrawing foreign volunteers from each side in the Spanish war, obstructs a peaceful settlement of the conflict, the British government believes.

The 1,500 word text of the reply was published today and it is a virtual rejection of the whole withdrawal scheme.

Intimations were given that the British may no longer put pressure on the French to keep the Pyrenees frontier closed to shipments of supplies for loyalist Spain. Threats, in fact, are mildly conveyed that the Barcelona government will get new aid as a result of Franco's stand.

Nullified by Reservations.

The earl of Plymouth, chairman of the international nonintervention committee, and Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain are interrupting their vacations to return to London tomorrow and consider the reply.

Although Franco does not reject the British plan outright on two major issues, the reply flatly turns down the original British proposal. It demands that evacuation of foreign fighters from Spain be carried out on the basis of equality instead of in proportion to the total number of volunteers on each side. It also rejects the condition that limited belligerent rights be granted only after a "substantial" number of foreign fighters are sent home.

Instead, Franco demands full belligerent rights without reservation or conditions as preliminary to any settlement or withdrawal of foreign troops.

May Kill Italian Pact.

The Franco note appears likely to add strain to Anglo-Italian relations, since the pact between Chamberlain and Premier Mussolini is dependent for inforcement on a settlement in Spain and withdrawal of foreign volunteers.

Franco suggested last November that only 3,000 foreigners be withdrawn from either side. He now agrees to the nonintervention committee's basic figure of 10,000, but insists the same number be withdrawn from both sides.

Franco also insisted that hostilities could not be suspended "for a single moment" to coun. the volunteers.

Can't Abandon Italian Troops.

ROME, Aug. 21.—(AP)—Italy has given an oral reply to Great Britain's complaint against continued shipment of Italian arms and men to the Spanish rebels, it was learned today. Count Galeazzo Ciano, Italian foreign minister, is reported to have told Sir Noel Charles, the British chargé d'affaires here, that if supplies have been reaching Spain from Italy it was only because Italian troops in the field could not be abandoned.

As to Italian combatants in Spain, Ciano was said to have assured Sir Noel that Italy could not withdraw her nationals from the civil war unless other countries took similar action.

Loyalists Check Foes.

HENDAYE, France [At the Spanish Frontier], Aug. 21.—(AP)—The Spanish government reported today that its army, which holds a wedge on the west bank of the Ebro river, was beating off a heavy rebel drive in southern Catalonia.

The rebels, however, said Franco's infantry, with the aid of tanks and armored cars, broke through the government's first lines in the lower Ebro valley and imperiled eight government divisions with isolation from their bases.

A rebel communique said Franco's forces advanced about two and a half miles.

CHINESE ATTACK JAP OUTPOSTS ON SHANGHAI'S EDGE

SHANGHAI, Aug. 22.—[Monday.]—(AP)—Heavy machine gun fire enveloped the entire western edge of Shanghai today as Chinese guerrillas renewed attacks upon Japanese outposts.

The excitement spread to areas near the Hungjao airport, scene of the incident that started the war in the Shanghai area more than a year ago, and to zones well within foreign defense lines.

Yesterday a stray bullet killed Richard N. Keys, son of a British architect, when guerrillas attacked a Japanese outpost near Hungjao. Keys was 22 years old.

POPE CONDEMNS EXTREME FORMS OF NATIONALISM

Exaggerated Zeal May Be Curse, He Warns.

CASTEL GANDOLFO, Italy, Aug. 21.—(AP)—Pope Pius XI. emerged from his summer palace today to warn a group of students and missionaries that "exaggerated nationalism is a veritable curse."

A Vatican news service quoted the pontiff as telling the students "there is a place for a just, moderate nationalism associated with all the virtues." But he cautioned them to be on guard against "exaggerated nationalism."

Such exaggeration, the pope declared, is the cause for "continuous division and almost for war."

Takes Motor Ride.

The pope, much to the surprise of Castel Gandolfo townsfolk, left his palace for the first time since he reached here on April 30 and motored to the summer school of the College of Propagation of the Faith.

Part of his discourse to the students issued by the Vatican news service said:

"There are nations and there is also nationalism. But God has made the nation. There is a place then for a just, moderate nationalism associated with all the virtues.

"But guard yourselves against exaggerated nationalism which is a veritable curse. Alas, it seems that all events support us when we say a veritable curse because it is the reason for continuous division and almost for war."

Speaks Soon After Agreement.

The pontiff's words came close after the Fascist party announcement yesterday of an agreement to end friction between Catholic Action societies and Fascism.

In a speech on July 29 the pope to some extent had linked this "exaggerated nationalism" and the Fascist attack on Catholic Action.

Another indication that Italy was proceeding with the outsing of Jews from official posts under the Fascist race program came with the announcement of the resignation of Dr. Murio Jona, a Jew. For many years he was vice president of the provisional council of Corporations of Ancona.

BRITON EXPELLED BY GERMANY AS A SPY REACHES BUDAPEST

BUDAPEST, Hungary, Aug. 21.—(AP)—Capt. Thomas Kendrick, British passport officer at Vienna who was expelled from Germany on charges of espionage, arrived here with his wife last night. The Kendricks probably will go to London shortly to avoid the political complications their stay here might cause.

MEXICO EXPELS ALIENS DESPITE COURT APPEALS

[Copyright: 1938: By the New York Times.]

MEXICO CITY, Aug. 21.—Foreigners considered by the secretary of the interior to be violating the Mexican immigration laws cannot appeal to the courts before being expelled from Mexico. This decision was made by the Mexican Supreme court yesterday.

Appeals to courts heretofore have delayed expulsion. Foreigners may still appeal, but must leave the country until their petitions get favorable action.

The decision is widely taken to mean the interior department can expel as many foreigners as it desires, alleging violation of any one of the numerous points of the Mexican immigration laws.

SLOVAK LEADER BURIED; PRAGUE HONORS ITS FOE

Priest Called Patriot by Czech Premier.

BY ALEX SMALL.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

RUZOMBEROK, Czechoslovakia, Aug. 21.—Fifty thousand Slovaks, mostly peasants in costumes, packed this little town in Slovakia today for the burial of Father Andreas Hlinka, leader of the Slovak autonomist party. The ceremony was a silent and almost invisible battle between the racial hatreds in this part of Europe.

First of all, the Prague government was alert to get any advantage it could out of a handsome gesture toward its hard-fighting enemy. Premier Milan Hodza—a fellow Slovak—attended the funeral and paid an eloquent and pathetic tribute to Hlinka's character as a citizen and his loyalty as a patriot.

Peasants Are Confused.

The premier's speech produced a visible impression on the simple country folk and left them confused as to why Hodza should praise so warmly a man whose cause he had opposed as chief of the government.

To further increase the confusion, two of the six wreaths on the priest's coffin were from Hodza and President Eduard Benes. Two of the others were from President Ignace Moscicki of Poland and the Polish parliament.

The Polish minister to Prague, Kasimir Papee, and the Polish military attaché walked with the principal mourners behind the coffin. Thousands of Poles living in Czechoslovakia participated in the procession. Hlinka was revered among Polish peasants as much as among his own countrymen.

A Friend of the Poles.

Thus Hlinka's body became the object around which raged the hatred of the Poles and Czechs. Hlinka had always proclaimed himself a warm friend and admirer of the Poles. He was the only citizen of Czechoslovakia ever to be decorated with the order of Polonia Restituta.

The Poles no doubt were pleased to honor a man who has always been a thorn in the flesh of the Prague government. Hlinka particularly had pleased the Poles and angered the Czechs by his denunciation of Czechoslovakia's military alliance with soviet Russia.

Some of the consecrated earth from Hlinka's grave was put into a golden casket by his niece, Christiana Hlinka. It will be given to Dominik Sloboda, American Slovak leader, who will carry it to the United States for presentation to the American Slovak league.

Gets Nazi Welcome

MME. NICHOLAS HORTHY.

VIENNA, Aug. 21.—(AP)—Hungary's regent, Admiral Nicholas Horthy, today received a royal welcome from his Nazi neighbors for the first time as he arrived here on his way to an important week's visit with Adolf Hitler.

The Nazi press hailed his state visit as presaging new neighborly friendship, which with the Rome-Berlin axis is "the strongest bearer of peace in middle Europe and the Danube basin."

The regent and his wife stepped from their special train in the Vienna station into a riot of color and flags while Hitler's representatives beamed a welcome. Horthy was accompanied by his premier, Bela Imredi, and Foreign Minister Kolomon von Kanya. Following a short halt in Vienna, the regent and his party headed north across Germany toward Kiel, where Mme. Horthy tomorrow is to christen the Nazis' third 10,000 ton battleship.

GERMANY IS NOT READY FOR WAR, HITLER WARNED

Generals Point to Lack of Ammunition.

BY SIGRID SCHULTZ.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, Aug. 21.—The realism of Germany's war games in which close to 1,500,000 are under arms or have been called up for service within the next five weeks was heightened today.

One report told of the creation of a defense committee to ration food and other supplies in case of emergency. Another told of war councils in which Reichsfuehrer Adolf Hitler had outlined his plans to eighteen chiefs of army corps and later to chiefs of staf on the eve of the maneuvers.

Told to Stay Out of Politics.

Hitler warned the generals to steer clear of politics and concentrate entirely on military preparedness. It was said he left no doubt in the minds of his listeners that Germany was ready to stand by Sudeten Germans in Czechoslovakia.

Conservative military circles are continuing efforts to convince the Fuehrer that Germany is not sufficiently prepared for war. They point to what they term the "comparative smallness of Germany's ammunition supplies."

"It is impossible for us to fight against several nations with the supplies at hand," they argue.

Speak of New Weapons.

The military men also point to a report which complains about the newly fortified lines in the Rhineland. The report says "amateur workers" who, drafted for service, did not build pill boxes—machine gun enclosures—with the perfect accuracy necessary to make them effective.

The Nazis counter to these complaints by saying: "If everything went the way the generals wanted it an army never would be ready for emergencies." They point to the misgivings the generals voiced every time Hitler "dared to enforce conscription, occupy the Rhineland, or Austria."

The Nazis also speak about new and mysterious weapons ranging from a "deadly rocket gun" to ammunition that has a greater explosive power than anything ever invented.

GUIDES BAR FRENCH MINISTER'S CLIMB TO MONT BLANC PEAK

SAINT GERVAIS, France, Aug. 21.—(AP)—Mountaineer guides today refused to allow Minister of Education Jean Zay to climb through fog to a snow covered refuge 14,300 feet up the side of towering Mont Blanc. He was scheduled to inaugurate a hospice.

Jean Zay and map showing Mont Blanc

An enthusiastic Alpinist, Zay set out with guides for the new Vallat refuge, but the mountaineers declined to let him go beyond Gouter's Needle at 10,820 feet.

"The mountain did not lick me—but the guides did," said the cabinet member. "I will come back another day and climb to get revenge."

Vice Premier Camille Chautemps and Pierre Frossard, minister of commerce, also had accepted invitations to climb Mont Blanc for the inauguration ceremonies. At the last moment, however, both said they were "slightly indisposed." They read inauguration speeches at the Tete Rousse shelter house, where they spent the night.

JERUSALEM ACTS TO PREVENT ARAB TERRORIST RAID

Nighttime Curfew Placed on All Highways.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

JERUSALEM, Aug. 21.—On information received by British authorities here that Arab terrorists plan an attack upon Jerusalem, orders have been issued that all roads outside of city areas throughout the country be under curfew from 6 p. m. to 5 a. m.

Government house, the residence of the British high commissioner, and all government offices will be heavily guarded. All streets in Jerusalem will be patroled at night by armored cars. Every British resident will receive a rifle and ammunition for his protection.

The city of Hebron, which was attacked Friday night by terrorists, is under a 24 hour curfew. The Black Watch regiment maintains military control of the city. The terrorists burned a bank building, the post office and a police patrol car. A British constable was killed.

Triple Religious Shrine.

Jerusalem is a religious shrine of the Arabs, Hebrews, and Christians and the present conflict arises from the desire of both the Arabs and Jews to rule Palestine.

During the world war the Arabs fought with the British to throw off the Turkish yoke. They believed Britain would help them make Palestine a part of a great Arabian state. Then on Nov. 2, 1917, Lord Balfour, the British foreign secretary, declared that his government favored Palestine as a national home for Jewish people.

The league of nations mandated Palestine to Great Britain on Sept. 29, 1923. At that time Palestine's Jewish population was about 75,000. The Arab population was about 325,000, as it is now. Since 1919 about 300,000 Jews have fled European persecution and settled in Palestine—a land which has an area about one-fifth the size of Illinois.

Partition Plan Opposed.

Arab resentment against the Jews boiled over in riots in 1929 and in a twenty-five week revolt in 1936. Great Britain sent a royal commission to investigate. In July, 1937, the commission recommended that Palestine be partitioned into a Jewish state, an Arab state, and a British mandate over a corridor from the sea to Jerusalem.

The Jews protested that the Arabs were to get the largest share of the territory. The Arabs objected that the Jews were to get the most fertile land. Bitterness over the partition plan caused Britain to send a new commission to the Holy Land this year to draw up a new scheme.

Some of Acts of Violence.

Following is a list of some of the more violent incidents of July and August:

July 8.—The British landed 600 marines and sailors at Haifa after 100 persons had been killed and wounded in an Arab-Jewish battle. The British battled 600 Arabs on the Palestine-Transjordan border.

July 9.—Terrorists stopped trafic on the Palestine-Egypt railway by derailing a train near Tulkarm. Two Jews were stabbed near Tel-Aviv, the all-Jewish city.

July 15.—Twelve Arabs were killed and twenty-nine wounded by a bomb which was hurled into the Jerusalem market place.

July 18.—Two Jews were slain in the Beisan valley by a band which was believed to have crossed into Palestine from Transjordan.

July 24.—American tourists in eighty cars were fired on by snipers near Athlit.

July 25.—Jews and Arabs battled in Haifa after a bomb killed 35 Arabs in the market place.

Aug. 6.—A Briton was slain by an Arab on a bus between Nazareth and Nablus.

Aug. 15.—Seven Jews were slain in the ambush of a bus near Mount Carmel.

Aug. 18.—British planes machine gunned Arabs in a battle near Acre.

Aug. 19.—British troops and Arabs fought a battle on the plain of Sharon. Sixty-six persons were killed and hundreds wounded in two days of fighting.

Moving Forward

Marshall Field & Company presents here each day observations and opinions intended to be of interest and value to those it seeks to serve.

Behind the Windows

By CALEB

"IT'S AS BEAUTIFUL as a window at Field's," remarked a lady of our acquaintance a few days ago. Comments of a similar nature concerning our display windows frequently come to our attention.

Behind our windows lies a story as fascinating and colorful as the displays themselves; the story of how they came to be a standard of comparison—a symbol of taste and artistry.

For many decades now the expression "window trimmers" has been inadequate to describe the men responsible for our street window displays. They are artists in every sense of the word. Color and form are to them a cult—not to be betrayed by exigencies of the moment or capitulation to fads of a day. Composition, proportion, harmony—these are their creed and scroll of authority.

"Our windows, first of all, must be educational; they must inform every one who sees them correctly, impressively, constructively," said one of our designers. "Whatever they see there must be right!"

That one condition imposes an unending task of study, research and development in architecture, styling, design sculpture, interior decoration, historic periods, exotic cultures—and a score of other subjects related to the highly exacting task of filling several thousand square feet of window space with a true reflection of the finest modes and merchandising advance in our world today.

To that end many highly skilled artisans work in our department of window design far away at the top of the store building. There are patient, adroit wood carvers executing intricate patterns, for instead of paper, our designers insist upon solid wood carvings—authenticity. There are skilled draftsmen and architects to execute the detailed plans from creative sketches; there are sculptors who fashion casts of ornaments and figures; metal workers who cut intricate patterns from gleaming aluminum; painters blending a single shade to precisely the point of harmony with a background or piece of merchandise.

All these—and more—contribute skill and craftsmanship to the finished displays that appear before the endlessly changing audience along the streets of Chicago's great shopping center.

POLICEMAN KILLS BANDIT IN TAVERN HOLDUP; WOUNDED

Single Handed, He Beats Off Gang of Five.

Hope was held last night for the recovery of a hero policeman, Patrick E. O'Malley, who was shot several times yesterday morning in a battle with colored bandits. The policeman killed one of them. Another was perhaps fatally wounded and captured. Three others of the gang were being hunted.

O'Malley, off duty and in plain clothes, fought with the gang early yesterday in Neely's Cocktail lounge, 2405 North Clark street, when the bandits tried to rob the place.

The policeman, who lives at 418 Arlington place, was put under the care of Drs. Charles Parkes and Henry E. Oliver at the North Chicago hospital. After an operation and several blood transfusions, the surgeons said they thought he had a good chance for recovery. O'Malley's wounds were in the neck, shoulder, and abdomen.

Acts Without Delay.

William Neely and his wife, Catherine, had just closed their place for the night, and were counting their receipts and visiting with O'Malley when four of the five bandits cut a hole in the screen door and released the latch. As they entered, menacing the three with guns, they announced: "This is a stickup."

O'Malley acted without an instant's delay, or without seeking shelter or safety. He jumped to one side, however, to draw their fire away from Mrs. Neely.

A bullet from his gun felled one of the bandits on the spot. Later this dead bandit was identified as Trussie Townsend, 25 years old, 369 West Oak street. Another of O'Malley's bullets went through the chest of George Hamar, 26, formerly of 18 East Illinois street. Several of the bandits fired at O'Malley as they ran.

The fifth bandit was waiting at the wheel of an automobile during the fight. The survivors escaped in the car and left Hamar at the office of Dr. Fred Steinberg, 531 North Rush street. The wounded bandit was arrested there and taken to the Bridewell hospital, where his death was expected last night.

Police recovered the bandit car last night in front of 4721 Calumet avenue. Mae Mauldin, 23 years old, colored, of that address, was seized when she stepped into the car. She later accompanied detectives on a tour of the south side. It was said police hoped she might be able to point out men who had used the car previously.

Capt. Tom Duffy of the Sheffield avenue station said a dozen or more policemen stood ready to give all the blood necessary to save Policeman O'Malley—if blood would save him. Capt. Duffy also told the surgeons and hospital authorities to spare no expense—to give O'Malley the best of care.

"He is a brave young policeman; the city needs him and we hope he will live," Duffy said.

The dead Townsend and the dying Hamar were viewed by several victims of robberies. They were identified as two of the colored gang that robbed the patrons of Cochran's Wonderbar at 6352 Broadway early Saturday morning, getting between $5,000 and $10,000 from patrons who were searched during five minutes of terror.

20 Killed and 100 Hurt in Train Wreck in India

MADRAS, India, Aug. 21.—(AP)—Twenty persons were killed and 100 injured today in a train wreck between Trichinopoly and Madura. The train was derailed when the tracks were washed away by a violent cloudburst.

CORRIGAN FINDS MILWAUKEE AND CITY HAILS HIM

Milwaukee, Wis., Aug. 21.—[Special.]—Douglas Corrigan flew to Milwaukee today to receive the city's cheers for his flight from New York to Ireland last month. He also was keeping a promise made to John Cudahy, United States minister to Ireland, who was Corrigan's host in Dublin. Cudahy arrived home this morning for a vacation only an hour before Corrigan landed from Chicago.

Corrigan met 750 guests at a noon dinner and rode through Wisconsin avenue amid cheers of thousands who lined the sidewalks. Then he went to the state fair for a few hours and returned to the Cudahy home for the night.

Corrigan's trip here from Chicago was delayed for a short time when he had to land at the Curtis-Reynolds airport, Glenview, Ill., to have a broken gas line repaired.

Tomorrow, Corrigan will fly to Springfield, Ill., where preparations are being made to greet him. He will be taken to the Lincoln tomb for a wreath laying ceremony following a parade and luncheon.

BOOKIES BETTING ON COURTNEY TO CONTINUE RAIDS

But They Offer Odds That Axes Won't Dent Play.

BY JAMES DOHERTY.

Betting yesterday at Clark and Randolph streets, mecca of turf gamblers and handicappers, was 8 to 5 that State's Attorney Courtney will continue applying the ax to betting parlors. Last week Courtney's men chopped up four of the largest and most powerfully backed gaming rooms in the city.

State's Attorney Courtney.

The prosecutor himself was not telling what he would do.

Curbstone opinions from the horse brokers who will take either side of a sporting proposition conceded that while Courtney's methods might not be exactly legal, they are effective. After Courtney's men, led by either Capt. Daniel Gilbert or Lieut. Tom Kelly, visit a betting room only dust and splinters remain of the furniture and fixtures, and the place is not likely to reopen for some time.

Claim Books Hydraheaded.

But the turf gentry were laying heavy odds that Courtney would not make betting on horse races unpopular or put much of a dent in the bookies' bank rolls. They guessed that for every place ruined by Courtney's ax men another place would open up.

At the neighborhood gaming places, the wise ones said, the ax men wouldn't find $100 worth of material to chop. It might help end the recession, they added, if gamblers were forced to spend money for furniture instead of paying lawyers, bondsmen, and politicians.

Nor was the neighborhood proprietor of a gambling emporium shedding tears over the wreckage of syndicate owned places. Courtney's crusade against the Capone syndicate was to the secret liking of many who met at the loop intersection yesterday and conversed out of the corners of their mouths with others who kept a sharp lookout as they listened.

Legal Authorities Differ.

Regarding the legality of the breakage there were different views from the legal lights the sporting gents had consulted. The law declares that gambling devices may be confiscated and destroyed, but no such authority is given to ruin chairs, tables, adding machines, change containers, it was claimed.

On the other hand, a section of the statute was held to permit prosecution of the owner of premises used for gambling purposes.

It was said this might intimidate some landlords during more prosperous times, but not now when most property owners are glad to find any kind of tenants.

Recall Speakeasies' Fate.

It was recalled that in the early days of prohibition police chopped up a few speakeasies. Later this policy was condemned and was discontinued. But in subsequent raids the property—tables, chairs, ice boxes, pianos, etc.—was confiscated and sold at auction by the government.

The gambling spokesmen said they had been advised there is no way to stop Courtney by injunction or by any suit against him for damages inflicted to property. They would have no standing in a court of equity or law, they were told, and all they can do is to sit back and hope that while Courtney may send his ax men into the place around the corner he will overlook their spots.

100,000 See Giant Plane in Loop During Air Week

Chicago's New Century Air week ended yesterday with the departure of Douglas Corrigan and the removal from the Congress street plaza of the $110,000 airliner, "Chicago's New Century." Officials estimated that nearly 100,000 persons visited the huge transport plane. More than 24,000 inspected Corrigan's plane Saturday in the American Airlines' hangar at Chicago airport.

CHIEF WITNESS AGAINST HINES TO TAKE STAND

Davis, Disbarred Attorney, State's Key Man.

New York, Aug. 21.—[Special.]—J. Richard [Dixie] Davis, key witness in District Attorney Thomas E. Dewey's case against James J. Hines, Tammany's powerful leader, will be put on the stand this week in the opinion of observers.

Alexander Pompez takes stand today.

Both sides analyzed over the week-end the testimony developed in the first week of the trial. Hines is charged with conspiracy in the flourishing 100 million dollar a year policy racket. Dewey charges that he was the political fixer for the scheme who used his influence to fix judges.

Davis Pleads Guilty.

Davis, a disbarred attorney, who allegedly inherited the racket after gangland guns disposed of Arthur [Dutch Schultz] Flegenheimer, will be used by Dewey to tie together the various lines of evidence brought out last week. Davis was named in the indictment with Hines but pleaded guilty and turned state's evidence.

Davis is said to be familiar not only with Hines' alleged participation in the policy racket but with whatever rôles magistrates may have played in its operation. When Schultz ruled Manhattan's rackets, Davis was his lawyer.

Will Tell of Policy Raid.

When the trial is resumed tomorrow morning, Alexander Pompez, the Negro policy banker of Harlem, again will be placed on the stand. His direct testimony is expected, at least in part, to lay the foundation for putting in evidence the record of a hearing before Magistrate Hulon Capshaw, in which a group of policy defendants were dismissed late in 1932.

Dewey has said that the record of the raid, which occurred on Nov. 23, 1932, will form part of the proof of the contention that Magistrate Capshaw was "intimidated, influenced, or bribed," by Hines or one of the co-defendants.

POLICE WORRIED AS U.S. LICENSES 230 TO SELL GUNS

Applications Pouring In Under New Law.

Licenses to sell firearms have been issued to 230 persons in the Chicago area under a new federal law that became effective July 30, Carter H. Harrison, collector of internal revenue, whose office issues the licenses, said the number of gun dealers in this district was far beyond all expectations.

The applications are still coming in, he said. A few dealers are located outside the city, he said, but the bulk are in Chicago, many of them pawnbrokers.

Presents Serious Problem.

Chief of Detectives John L. Sullivan and Col. Henry Barrett Chamberlin, operating director of the Chicago crime commission, said the number of arms dealers presents a serious problem in crime prevention and law enforcement.

The purpose of the law, they explained, is to make it difficult for the criminal to arm himself. The law is known as the Copeland firearms act, named after the late Senator Royal Copeland of New York, its sponsor, who died two weeks before its passage.

The law calls for licensing of manufacturers and dealers. The latter must be licensed in order to buy from the manufacturers. Sales to unlicensed dealers are prohibited.

The dealer, in turn, is forbidden to sell to any person who is under indictment or who has been convicted of a crime of violence. Sales to a fugitive from justice are also banned. The maximum penalty for violation of the law is five years imprisonment.

The federal government has jurisdiction only when guns are shipped or transported in interstate or foreign commerce. Transporting, as in the days of prohibition, includes carrying on the person, according to a construction of the law. Federal officials pointed out that possession of a firearm or ammunition by an ex-convict, a person under indictment or a fugitive from justice shall be constituted as evidence that he violated the law and that the dealer who sold the gun to him also violated it.

The names of 230 who received licenses could not be made public, Collector Harrison said. Chief Sullivan said he believed the police department should be furnished with a list of all places where a gun might be bought. He said he would ask the government's coöperation.

Los Angeles, Cal., Aug. 21.—[Special.]—Maxine Sullivan, colored, who once sang in Pittsburgh cafés for $25 a week, is now earning $5,000 a week for her work in "St. Louis Blues," a movie now in production. She is bewildered by her sudden success. "I'm singing no different from what I was in Pittsburgh," she said today. The Sullivan girl's real name is Maxine Williams.

WPA BUILDS UP A HUGE WAITING LIST FOR JOBS

No Money in Sight to Hire All Applicants.

Pressure by Works Progress administration officials, who want the city relief administration to register all unemployed persons not on relief who can qualify for WPA jobs, has resulted in a huge WPA waiting list.

This reserve will be used this week to justify raising the Chicago WPA pay roll to a new all time high. Charles E. Miner, state WPA director, said yesterday that the worker total would be increased from 121,000 to 125,000 by the end of the week.

This not only will exhaust the estimated $5,000,000 apportioned to Chicago for WPA wages in August, but it will not be enough to give jobs to all applicants approved by the city and state relief administrations. Miner said, however, that he would ask for an even higher quota here.

Waiting Lists Opposed.

Meanwhile relief authorities appeared ready to rebel again at the policy of building up a waiting list while job prospects are indefinite.

Ordinarily the Chicago relief administration and the Illinois Emergency Relief commission require that a man be on direct relief before getting a WPA job. Nonreliefers were certified for the WPA for three months last winter and again during July at the WPA'S request.

After a three week's suspension because a static waiting list of 30,000 from both relief and nonrelief certifications had accumulated, the relief administration reopened the short cut path to the WPA last Monday. Applications were taken at the new central intake office.

Leo M. Lyons, CRA administrator and IERC secretary, said that nearly 7,000 persons applied during the week. He said that about 75 per cent, or more than 4,000 would be certified.

False Hopes Are Cruel, He Says.

"It is cruel to raise false hopes in these people and costly to certify them if WPA cannot absorb them rapidly," said Lyons.

Miner asserted that 7,500 persons have been assigned to WPA projects in the last ten days as an answer to Lyons' concern. A comparison of WPA pay roll figures for Aug. 10 and Aug. 17, however, showed an increase of 2,000 or less in men actually at work.

Miner said that in the next day or two he will ask Howard O. Hunter, regional WPA director, to allocate more funds to Chicago, thus raising the 125,000 limit.

Last week Hunter indicated this might be impossible. "There is a limit to the money available," he said.

caped from the Montague county jail April 30. Their next known crime was the Arkansas robbery.

The Woodriver pay roll was taken Aug. 5. On Aug. 10 a Des Moines, Ia., filling station identified them as the pair who robbed him of $44. Two days later they robbed a bottling plant in Nashville, Ark., of $100. Federal agents were close to the bandits in Arkansas and fought a gun battle with them Aug. 13 in a woods on the Arkansas-Oklahoma border.

Seek Dallas Hideout.

From Aug. 13 until last Friday the bandits made their way back to Dallas to find a hideout among friends. They arrived on a freight train and hid in a river shack for a while.

After the Arkansas bank robbery the pair went to Shreveport, La., where they met Ruby May Roberts of Vivian, Ia., and Lois Weber of Dupo, Ill.

The girls accompanied them north. In a tourist camp on the way from the south Hamilton accidentally shot Walters in the knee while they were cleaning their revolvers. When they reached Joliet, Ill., Walters asked a physician to remove the bullet. He became suspicious of the physician, however, and fled.

State police encountered them in Summit, Ill., and a gun battle ensued. The outlaws escaped, but the women were captured. The women, both 20 years old, are being held by federal agents in St. Louis, Mo.

Criminals' Trail

BRITAIN CALLED ON TO PAY HER WAR DEBT TO U.S.

CAMBRIDGE, England, Aug. 21.—(AP)—Payment of Great Britain's war debt to the United States was urged today by Commissioner David C. Lamb of the Salvation Army.

"I hope this country will soon come to agreement with regard to payment of its war debt to the United States," the commissioner told the British Association for the Advancement of Science. "I was in America when Mr. Baldwin [Earl Baldwin, former prime minister] signed on behalf of Britain our promise to pay and I am not likely to forget the immediate outcropping of good will and confidence which followed that signing.

"The moral value of settlement cannot be measured in dollars and cents or in sterling."

HOLDUP OF TWO COUPLES NETS $6,000 IN GEMS

An impatient, nervous bandit held up two couples late last night just outside the Belden-Stratford hotel, 2300 Lincoln Park West, and stole jewelry valued at $6,000 and a purse containing 85 cents.

His victims were Mr. and Mrs. J. L. Art and Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Greene, who live at the Belden-Stratford. Art is president of the Automatic Billiard Corporation of America, and Greene is president of the Merchants and Manufacturers Securities company.

Their automobile was blocked in Belden avenue, just off Lincoln Park West, by the bandit car which contained two men. One alighted, climbed into the Art machine, and demanded money and jewels. From Mrs. Art he took a matched pearl necklace with diamond clasp, valued at $5,200, and an $800 wrist watch. Mrs. Greene handed over her purse. The nervous robber apparently was so eager to get away that Art and Greene delayed handing over their money. Their strategy was profitable, for the robber suddenly leaped out, and fled with his pal, not bothering to search the men.

3 ARE SEIZED FOR TRYING TO PASS BOGUS $20 BILLS

Three men were arrested by Chicago avenue police yesterday in connection with the passing of counterfeit $20 bills in North Clark street taverns. Two of the men made the mistake, police said, of trying to fool the same tavern keepers twice.

The prisoners are George Stineman, 417 North Clark street; Neil Woudt, 28 East 111th street, and Justin McCarthy, 27 West Ohio street. Police said Stineman was the leader.

Stineman and Woudt on Saturday night passed spurious bills in the taverns at 427 and 618 North Clark street. Yesterday they tried to pass another at the former address, but tavern employes recognized the bill as bogus, and trailed Stineman and Woudt to Stineman's living quarters. Police were notified, and Policemen Frank Breitenberg, George Shannon and Philip O'Neal made the arrests. They found three counterfeit bills in Stineman's room. The prisoners will be turned over to government officials today.

EXPLORERS FIND ALASKA GLACIER 235 MILES LONG

BY BRADFORD WASHBURN.

CORDOVA, Alaska, Aug. 21.—(AP)—The National Geographic-Harvard university expedition Saturday discovered without question the largest glacier system in the world outside the polar ice caps. The ice field extends 235 miles.

Bradford Washburn.

We landed at Cordova Saturday afternoon after a successful flight down the backbone of the St. Elias range.

The purpose of the flight was to discover the source of the huge Bering glacier which flows almost to the sea 100 miles west of Mount St. Elias.

Last week with Pilot Bob Reeve of Valdez we explored the extreme western limits of what appeared to be an enormous glacier connecting Bering glacier with Hubbard and Malaspina glaciers, already the two largest in the world outside of arctic regions.

Saturday's flight, during which we flew completely around Mount Logan and Mount St. Elias, the second and third highest peaks in North America, proved Bering, Seward and Malaspina glaciers are joined by a river of ice.

Heavy arrows indicate the source of the glacier system in the St. Elias mountain range in Alaska. The glacier was discovered during a six hour flight over the area.

This vast mass of glacier ice is from 5,000 to 7,000 feet high. It is completely hidden from view behind the coastal mountain ranges.

We made a complete photographic record of the glacier discovery from altitudes ranging up to 15,000 feet. The flight took more than six hours.

Our discovery of this great ice field proves the combined glacier system of the St. Elias range is a mammoth expanse of unbroken ice several thousand feet deep stretching almost from Cape St. Elias southward and eastward for 235 miles to the Alsek river valley.

PHYSICIAN HELD AS TORTURER OF FORMER FRIEND

Olympia, Wash., Aug. 21.—(AP)—A socially prominent physician and four other men were under arrest today as authorities investigated the torture of Irving Baker, former coast guard officer. Prosecutor S. W. Troy said Baker was a victim of jealousy involving the doctor's attractive wife.

Dr. K. W. Berry. [A. P. Wirephoto.]

Troy said Baker, 37 years old, was forced from his home Friday night and taken to an abandoned quarry.

Flogged in Old Quarry.

There his abductors flogged him until his back was welted, beat him about the head, and tore his flesh with pliers in a mutilation attempt.

Baker, former commander of the coast guard cutter Atlanta, is confined to a hospital by his injuries. He now is an automobile dealer.

Dr. K. W. Berry, 54, who, Prosecutor Troy said, admitted the attack; Harold Schars, taxicab company owner; James Reddick, 27, taxicab operator, and two men identified only as taxicab drivers, were under arrest. Troy said Reddick admitted driving the car used by Dr. Berry and the other two men.

Charged with Kidnaping.

Dr. Berry, Schars, and Reddick were charged with first degree kidnaping and first degree assault, the former a capital offense at the discretion of the jury. Bail was set at $10,000 each. Troy said he would seek to have Dr. Berry's bail increased. All five are in jail.

Troy said Dr. Berry's jealousy over attentions paid his pretty young wife at a July 4 party caused the attack upon Baker. The prosecutor said the Baker and Berry families had been intimate friends until the July 4 party.

PARENTS BELIEVE SLEEP SICKNESS VICTIM IS BETTER

Mary Ellen Reardon, 2 years old, has been asleep for 145 days. Although she is suffering from encephalitis, or sleeping sickness, her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Daniel F. Reardon of 3132 76th street, Elmwood Park, believe she is showing improvement.

"Mary Ellen is able to take food from a spoon," said Mrs. Reardon, "and sometimes seems to be aware of her surroundings. We took it as an encouraging sign when tears rolled down her cheeks the other day. She can move her arms and legs a little. We have hopes she will recover fully."

The child fell into her long sleep after an attack of measles in March.

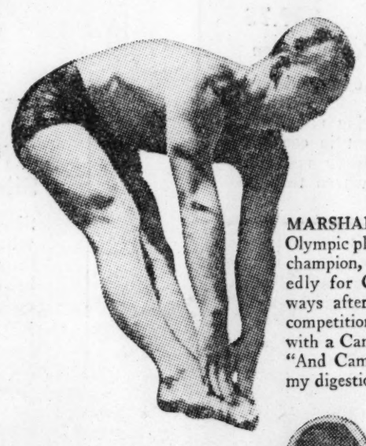
ONE SMOKER TELLS ANOTHER:

"GET A LIFT WITH A CAMEL!"

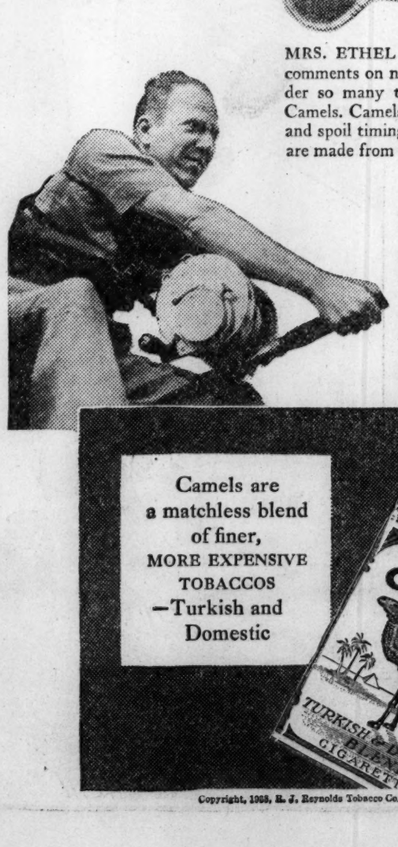
"IT'S CAMELS FOR ME!" declares Jane Fauntz Manske, whose brilliant diving has brought her national fame. She adds: "After a diving exhibition when I feel exhausted, I welcome the 'lift' in energy I get with a Camel. Camels give me a swell sense of well-being—especially during and after meals. Camels certainly add to the joy of living. They're so mild and fine-flavored!"



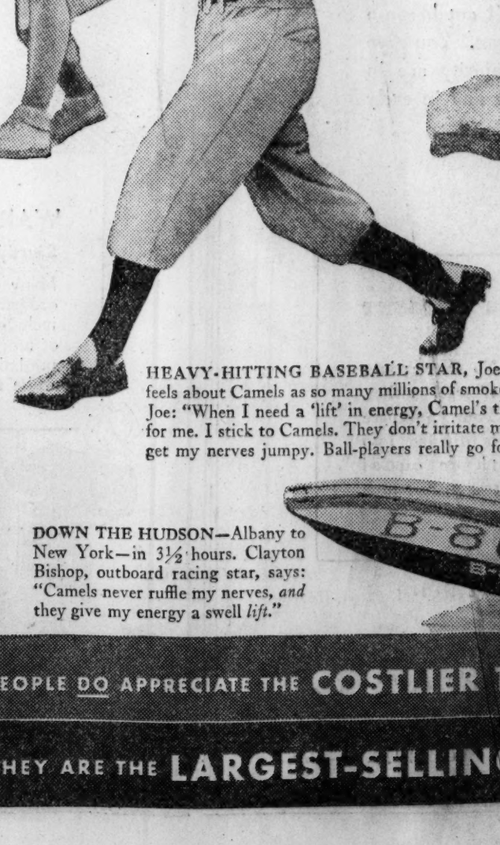
MARSHALL WAYNE, Olympic platform diving champion, speaks decidedly for Camels. "Always after a strenuous competition I get a 'lift' with a Camel," he says. "And Camels sure help my digestion along."

MRS. ETHEL ARNOLD, tennis star, comments on nerve control—"No wonder so many tennis champions prefer Camels. Camels don't upset the nerves and spoil timing. I'm convinced Camels are made from COSTLIER TOBACCOS!"

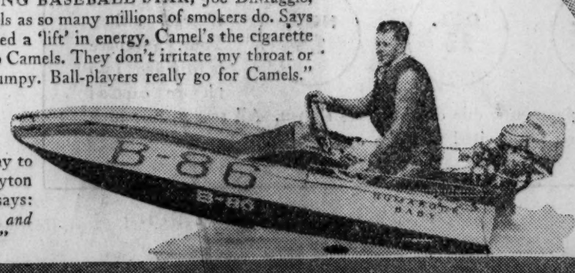
AQUAPLANING IS FUN but exhausting too. That's one reason why Gloria Wheeden appreciates Camels. She says: "When I feel draggy, a Camel gives my energy a 'lift.' And Camels are mild, yet full-flavored."



CAMELS "FOR DIGESTION'S SAKE," appeal to noted game-fish angler Erl Roman, as well as the "lift" in energy Camels give him. He sums up Camel's advantages with: "I get more fun out of life, smoking Camels. I've smoked them 18 years."



HEAVY-HITTING BASEBALL STAR, Joe DiMaggio, feels about Camels as so many millions of smokers do. Says Joe: "When I need a 'lift' in energy, Camel's the cigarette for me. I stick to Camels. They don't irritate my throat or get my nerves jumpy. Ball-players really go for Camels."



DOWN THE HUDSON—Albany to New York—in 3½ hours. Clayton Bishop, outboard racing star, says: "Camels never ruffle my nerves, and they give my energy a swell lift."

RALPH GULDAHL, twice winner of U.S. Open golf crown, says: "One thing about Camels is the quick 'lift' in energy they give. Camels never jangle my nerves. Camels are milder too—easy on my throat. I've always liked the rich Camel flavor."

SWIMMING RECORDS fall before Lenore Kight Wingard's expert strokes—national and world marks. Lenore prefers Camels, which hold a record too—America's largest-selling cigarette of all time. Lenore remarks: "When I feel taut after a meet, a Camel helps ease the tension. Another thing—Camels are so mild—they never irritate my throat."

CHARGES SCHEME FOR U. S. TO SEIZE RULE OF INDUSTRY

Congressman Brands Plan Trend to Sovietism.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Aug. 21.—[Special.]—Representative Paul W. Shafer [R., Mich.] today accused the planners in Washington of launching socialistic schemes for the government operation of industry.

Mr. Shafer referred to an announcement Aug. 3, in Battle Creek, Mich., that tractors made there since 1935 by the Duplex Machinery company for the Coöperative Manufacturing company, a distributing agency, hereafter would be made in Arthurdale, W. Va. Arthurdale is the subsistence homestead project of the resettlement division of the Farm Security administration.

The Arthurdale industrial project calls for the production of tractors to be sold to farmers at yardstick prices.

Yardstick Called Disguise.

"The use of the term 'yardstick' is but a disguise to cover the real objective of these undertakings, which is to sovietize American industry in the same manner that Secretary Wallace has been sovietizing American agriculture," said Mr. Shafer.

"When the TVA power projects were authorized, we were told that they were to be nothing more than 'yardsticks' with which to measure the efficiency of the privately owned electrical utilities. Today we know that the yardstick argument is a farce.

"The government openly is engaging in competition with privately owned utilities, and as a result has strangled further progress and development in the important public utility field."

Other Schemes Reported.

Mr. Shafer said he had received word that the Roosevelt administration was planning to establish, with blank check relief appropriations, a group of experimental yardstick textile mills in the south. Also, he added, there are rumors in Washington about plans to establish yardstick steel mills.

"Although the New Dealers decline to discuss their plans for sovietizing industry by establishing what they euphemistically term yardstick experiments, reports of what they intend should not be treated lightly because in a small way they have already taken a step toward this end in the manufacture of tractors," Mr. Shafer said.

"According to the announcement made in Battle Creek, where this plant has been located—significantly no announcement was made in Washington—the government through the farm security administration will supply $200,000 capital for the Arthurdale Farm Equipment corporation and will provide another $125,000 for the construction of the plant and purchase of equipment.

Under Guise of Coöp.

"The Arthurdale plant will be operated as a coöperative undertaking by the Arthurdale homesteaders. Nevertheless, it is another instance of government competition with private industry.

"If it is proper for the government to finance a coöperative tractor factory to compete with private industry, why should it not finance a coöperative factory for making automobiles or furniture? If it is proper to use New Deal funds to set up a yardstick textile factory, will not the next step be the use of government funds to establish a yardstick automobile factory?

"Surely industry cannot view these developments without alarm, because they constitute the camel's nose under the tent of American free enterprise. Surely labor, knowing that there has been set up a decree forbidding employés to strike against the government, cannot feel comfortable over such developments."

Farm Coöps Buy Stock.

The new Arthurdale Farm Equipment corporation will be managed by Fred S. Hutty, who has been general manager of the Coöperative Manufacturing company. Incorporators of the company are said to be Arthurdale settlers, although the $200,000 capital was raised by sale of stock to farm coöperatives in Michigan, Indiana, Minnesota, and Missouri.

When the plan to produce tractors in Arthurdale was revealed the Battle Creek Chamber of Commerce sent protests to Michigan representatives and senators and to Mrs. F. D. Roosevelt, wife of the President, known as an Arthurdale sponsor. The chamber of commerce wanted to know why if the government was going to finance a tractor plant it could not be located in Battle Creek close to the source of supplies.

After the Swim

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph W. Charlton at New York hotel after he swam ashore from boat because they could not get stateroom.

New York, Aug. 21.—[Special.]—Joe Charlton, a petroleum engineer, and his wife spent a peaceful Sunday today looking over the sights and getting ready for a trip to Europe aboard the Bremen, sailing Wednesday. Forgotten apparently was all the trouble they caused the captain and crew of the Colonial liner Comet.

Here from San Marcos, Cal., the Charltons decided to take a trip to Providence aboard the Comet. When the Comet was passing through Hell Gate channel they were told all staterooms were filled and they would have to sleep on deck.

"Nothing doing," stated Charlton distinctly. "Turn this boat back."

"Nothing doing," said an officer.

Charlton disrobed.

"You can't go ashore now," the officer remarked, musingly.

"Oh, yes, I can," said Mr. Charlton.

He leaped overboard shouting "Okay, come on, Claire." Mrs. Charlton started to go after him, but sailors stopped her. A passing launch picked up Charlton. The Comet's captain parked his ship at an island in the channel and Mrs. Charlton debarked and was taken ashore by a police boat.

THEY'RE LIBERALS—WITH ANYBODY'S MONEY.

Senator Sheppard's congressional campaign investigating committee has been given a Pennsylvania exhibit containing a letter sent to the WPA workers in the state over Senator Joseph F. Guffey's signature, soliciting campaign contributions from these federal workers who are on the pay rolls because otherwise they would be destitute. Senator Guffey is abroad and Senator Sheppard has deferred inquiry until the Pennsylvanian can return and explain himself.

There is said to be some doubt whether he signed his name or whether it was done by agents. The question of responsibility, moral and legal, waits upon the senator's explanations. Senator Sheppard said that apparently some one had violated the corrupt practices act. The law makes such solicitation a crime.

The New Deal is frankly using the federal relief workers politically and demanding that they vote for the men who pay them. It is no longer regarded as a shocking or outrageous thing to do this. Mr. Harry Hopkins, the head of the WPA, is even trying to standardize new ethics for the solicitation, or coercion, of the WPA voters.

Senator Guffey may yet have occasion to regret that he broke with Gov. Earle, both yielders-to-none in their devotion to the New Deal and all its side lines of advantage. Gov. Earle has devised a Pennsylvania system of social security to protect politicians threatened by a grand jury. The final word of the courts has not been spoken on his scheme. It may be too good to be good legally, but it's simple. It prohibits the grand jury from acting. That would blow a prosecutor's nose, by damn I am. If Senator Guffey hadn't tried to keep Mr. Earle from going to the United States senate Mr. Earle now might try to keep him from going before a federal grand jury. Maybe there's not much danger. Mr. Guffey is not on the black list. He is not in the purge. He is a liberal, with the WPA worker's money. His mind tracks with Mr. Roosevelt's.

When Senator Sheppard was first informed that Mr. Guffey had brought out the cider press he said that at "first blush" he couldn't see that the incident required investigation. At second and subsequent blushes it appeared more serious. Some one brought out a law book and quoted chapter, verse, and line. Senator Guffey did not give Senator Sheppard his first blush. The Texas chairman of the campaign committee is a man of conscience. He has blushed often as he observed the progress of the New Deal campaign, which he said was so scandalous as to be a burden on the conscience of the country. However, it seems now to be accepted as a pure New Deal political practice to squeeze the WPA for everything that can be forced out of it. These citizens are the unfortunates of the Roosevelt depression.

The original line was that politics and relief never would be intermingled in New Deal campaigning. It was agreed then that the manipulation of national distress by federal appropriations to take care of destitution would be too outrageous even to be considered and that it was a reflection upon the integrity of any person who would accuse the administrators of the federal relief money of such an unthinkable offense. When Mr. Aubrey Williams, Mr. Hopkins' assistant, suggested that the WPA workers should recognize their friends and vote for them there were Democrats in congress who thought this was scandalous. Mr. Williams did not retract and Mr. Hopkins supports him.

The WPA worker solicited for votes and money by the person who can continue him on the pay roll or lay him off lacks freedom in his use of the ballot. His necessities are his master and the solicitor knows it. Mr. Hopkins knows it and that is probably why he has put on 200,000 new WPA workers in contested southern constituencies, in some of which the purge is yet to be tried.

UNUSED TUNNELS.

A contributor to the Voice of the People suggested recently the use of the Van Buren and La Salle street tunnels for motor trafic. The tunnels under the river were built for the street car companies. The one in Van Buren street has been out of service for several years and the other is not used intensively.

Our correspondent believes that trafic congestion at the bridges might be considerably relieved by his plan. The city's trafic engineer, Leslie Sorenson, is skeptical. The La Salle street bridge he regards as adequate for the trafic which flows over it and the Van Buren street tunnel is to become a part of the city's subway system. Accordingly, he argues, it would be a mistake to invest much money in equipping either tunnel for use by motorists.

The difference of opinion could be settled by a trafic study to determine how severe the congestion is at the river crossings in the vicinity of the tunnels and how much relief might be expected from use of the tunnels at the rush hours and when the bridges are open for ships. The fact that the exhaust gases would have to be removed is not an insurmountable obstacle and neither is the 10 per cent grade.

No one knows when a traction settlement will be concluded, if ever, or when subway building is to commence. It would seem reasonable, therefore, to put the tunnels to use if investigation discloses a need for additional routes across the river at these points. The cost of reconditioning the tubes for motor trafic should not be a very large item.

THE GOOD KINGS.

The London Spectator, in connection with comment on the visit of the British king to an industrial welfare institution known as the Duke of York's camp, relates that a visiting speaker there had mentioned that he once had been asked by a person in an American audience how long Great Britain would remain under the monarchical institution and said that "the right answer was not the one I gave—as long as Great Britain had the opportunity of watching the United States under republican institutions—but as long as we had a king who made such enterprises as the Duke of York's camp his personal concern."

The Spectator adds, "that is fundamentally true." The editor continues with the observation that there had been avowed republicans holding high office in England in the last century, and if there are none today it is because King George V. and King George VI. "have been the men we have seen and known." There is an omission here which might escape attention. In the period covered by these two lives there was, it will be remembered, although it is not noted by the Spectator, another king, namely, Edward VIII.

The omission of his name when good kings are mentioned would permit the inference that he was not supposed to have done the monarchical institution any good, although if he had a distinguishing characteristic it was the interest he revealed in British subjects who were not getting very much out of life.

During his short reign it was frequently said that Edward was too much concerned with the plight of some of the people, and because of that his abdication was not unwelcome, regardless of the other factors which had to do with it. For the opportunity of watching the United States under republican institutions the British generously repay us by affording us the opportunity of watching Great Britain under monarchical institutions. Possibly we give them more fun than they give us, although Edward VIII. did a great deal to balance the books.

One of the major responsibilities of George VI. was in a way disagreeable to a brother who had been compelled to take up a brother's crown. It was the rehabilitation of monarchy, supposed to have been injured by the predecessor's unkingly conduct in assuming that his rights as a man were not extinguished by his duties as a sovereign. The king over the water may at any time make the routine of George VI. even heavier than it is now, requiring him to show still more interest in boys' camps, in half-orphans, and aged widows. A British king must embody all the virtues which are attributed to the middle classes, and these virtues include the display of sympathy and an easily touched heart.

For republican institutions about the best that can be said is that democracy cannot safely regard government as its highest achievement. Republicans are at their best when they succeed in diminishing the importance of government and the necessity for it. Sometimes they forget this, but it is to be hoped that with fresh experiences and less excited reflections they will always return to their ideals. The authoritarian state is not among them. Hitler is not wanted. George VI. is not needed.

MINIMUM WAGES.

Elmer F. Andrews, the administrator of the new wage and hour act, says it would be economically unsound and very unfair for manufacturers to cut wages to "the rock level of the new fair standards labor act." Labor department officials say that they are receiving reports of widespread wage cuts in the textile industry to get the pay level down to the minimum allowed by the act—down to the oft mentioned floor. During the first year, beginning Oct. 24, the minimum in all interstate industry is fixed at 25 cents an hour.

The fear that a minimum fixed by law would tend to become the maximum had been expressed by labor leaders and by some economists whenever wage and hour legislation was proposed. Sometimes some economists are right, although the reformists have always been able to quote authorities to suit their purposes. It may be that some of them were right when they said that a minimum wage might both reduce some earnings and increase unemployment.

The fact that very low wages were regarded as unjust and socially injurious does not lead necessarily to proof that legislation fixing wages will be wise. Persons who did not challenge the intention of the supporters of the wage act did fear that if they established a minimum some employers might then use that minimum as the law's statement of what was a fair wage to be paid their employés, if they could get away with it. The labor department reports would indicate that this prediction is finding some justification.

CIRCUS PROBLEMS.

[Indianapolis News.]

As winter quarters for two of the country's largest tent shows have been established in Peru and Rochester, Indiana has a special interest in the future of the circus business. A combination of unfavorable circumstances made this season one of the worst in circus history. The shows planned their routes knowing that they would have to contend with the recession, but they did not foresee that heavy rains and labor troubles would provide additional complications.

The Ringling Brothers-Barnum and Bailey circus struck its tents in Scranton, Pa., and moved to winter quarters in Sarasota, Fla. A short time ago the Cole Brothers-Clyde Beatty circus abandoned its tour at Bloomington, Ill., and returned to Rochester, where it has winter quarters. The Downie Brothers circus quit in Delaware, the Sells-Sterling circus, a motorized show, closed its season in Wisconsin, and two smaller shows, operating in eastern territory, gave up the struggle.

The Circus Fans Association of America was organized at Madison, Wis., a few weeks ago to keep the circus business alive. A Detroit advertising writer has accepted leadership of the association, and the "save the circus" movement is to be extended throughout the country. The association will plead that the circus is an American institution, that it must not be permitted to suffer the same fate as the small town theaters, and that if the matter is presented properly millions who like to watch the thrilling acts, feed the elephants, and drink pink lemonade will assist in the campaign. The association's first effort will be toward settling the labor disputes. Circus owners are unwilling to admit that their type of entertainment has lost its appeal. They are hopeful that if they can weather this season's vicissitudes they will be back next year bigger and better than ever.

A LINE O' TYPE OR TWO

How to the Line, let the quips fall where they may. Reg. U.S. Pat. Office

Only three of the old showboats of the Ohio and Mississippi rivers have been in operation this summer. They are Capt. Menke's "Golden Rod," Capt. Billy Bryant's, named after himself, and Capt. Tom Reynolds' "Majestic." You can find the "Golden Rod" at St. Louis and Bryant's at Cincinnati. The former, which has the largest seating capacity [960] in the river amusement business, is the craft which Edna Ferber visited in quest of atmosphere for her novel, "Show Boat." Capt. Menke has evidence in proof of this assertion; a framed telegram from Miss Ferber, dated 1925, asking for information about his route. It hangs in his cabin.

A week's study of the flow of poetry in the Line's mail caused us to remark that the authors, like Cæsar's ancient Gaul, were divided into three parts: Nature Poets, Love Poets, and Death Poets.

"Well, what other kinds of poets are there?" asked Marilew, who laughs at the jokes [if any].

"Fun Poets," we told her, and she laughed at that, so it goes into Monday's column.

LOVE MAKES THE LINE.

I'll never be the kind of man
That you've been dreaming of,
Tall, handsome, strong, and masterful;
My lips can't speak my love.

But I can take you to a wood
Where trumpet flowers twine
And find you gentians purple blown
And graceful columbine.

And I can take you to the hills
With feldspar shining white
And show you quartz and tourmaline
And gleaming malachite.

Then I will build a driftwood fire
And when you feel its glow,
The warmth will mean the love for you
By deeds I've tried to show.

For you I've flown a tricky Spad.
For you I've crossed the brine;
And I have played at guard for you,
And I have made The Line.

A BEAGLE BAYS NO MORE.

Michigan's moon breathed a spell over the countryside, silhouetting each farmyard object in precise detail. We of the farmhouse, in spite of the fact that the day had been an exhausting one, tossed in our beds; for Micky, our much loved beagle, was weeping desolately. No baying at the moon was this, but terrifying wails of pain which sounded fantastically human and caused us to start up in our beds intermittently, hearts heavy with pity for her agony.

Suddenly I heard Dad shuffle into his slippers and go out through the kitchen door. The cries of the stricken dog were rising—rising—then they snapped in the middle of a crescendo, cut short by the crack of a rifle. Stillness crept up out of the moon shadows and froze in a thrill which was neither fear nor shock nor sorrow nor relief—something akin to all these things; quite understandable, but utterly without expression. . . . Soon through my window I saw Dad returning unhappily, gun in hand, crossing the lawn in his ridiculous pajamas, quietly blowing his nose in tribute to his dearest mute friend.

Ah, this is the intelligent way to die, I mused, in pure compassion. The one we love most coolly grants us release. Micky has her nose on the last trail now. I can hear her gleefully baying in the distance; see her bounding upward on a moonbeam.

The Saint Bernard who guards the Pass, hearing her approach, will mutter: "Another greedy one."

But when she stops before him, wagging her body in her own characteristic way, and he gazes into those infinitely patient brown eyes, he will stand aside for her without so much as a sniff of inspection. Ruth Burkett.

Sequel to Mystery.

Here are a few brush strokes to add highlights to the melancholy portrait of the mysterious "Woman with the Black Mask" who stalks the streets of the Loop in strange attire and makeup.

At least once each week she walks up to the box office of a Randolph street theater, buys an admission, and enters. She never stays more than a half hour, departing silently like a restless wraith in search of its soul, only to enter another theater near by and repeat the procedure on down the street until she has visited them all.

Silently oblivious to the stares of startled passers-by, she moves on—a creature from a world beyond, living in a dream existence of her own.

And who can say that she isn't happy?

ANGELS' NIGHT OUT.

Last night as I hurried home
I heard a thunderous roll;

A-markin' up their score.

What Student Nurses Want to Know.

The very good looking young doctor who had just joined the hospital staff was giving his first lecture to the student nurses. When he finished he said:

"Now, does any one want to ask a question?" But no one answered. "Come, come," he said, "there must be something you want to know."

At this a "probee" came to life. "That's right," he said. "What is your question?"

"Are you married?" she asked. E. O'B.

NORMAL BLOOD DEPENDS UPON GOOD DIGESTION.

We hear so much these days about the condition of the blood, about the necessity of combating anemia, that a dinner guest inadvertently may ask his vis-à-vis, "How is your hemoglobin?"

Occasionally one will encounter a person who holds the belief that the body starts out with its normal quota of blood, requiring little thereafter except replacements because of hemorrhage from a cut finger or some such accident. As a matter of fact the elements of this life giving fluid deteriorate constantly and new supplies are produced with equal regularity. Well being, therefore, depends upon proper nutrition. If the food ingested is adequate in quantity and contains the essential ingredients all will be well. We must make certain that the diet has ample iron and vitamin C, and, in addition, that the liver is manufacturing the particular substance necessary for the formation of new cells.

Many of us will use up a larger quota of iron than others. For example, small losses of blood from some minor, but chronic hemorrhage—piles, excessive menstruation, and the like—may demand a far higher intake than is furnished by the average menu. A mild oozing from a peptic ulcer may go unrecognized for quite some time, and every now and then, when a low hemoglobin is discovered, this may lead to the identification of a hitherto hidden source of a circulation leak.

Digestion plays probably the chief rôle. Even though we consume the correct edibles the state of the vital fluid may be poor because something has gone wrong with absorption. In other words, foods—to be utilized by the system—must undergo solution to such a point that they can be taken up by the circulation. The individual may be receiving enough iron with his meals, but if it is not assimilated satisfactorily it cannot reach the tissues. In consequence, he may exhibit the typical pallor of anemia.

The first thing to check is the hydrochloric acid in the stomach. While, in some instances, the absence of this chemical may not interfere with the absorption of iron, nevertheless, if too little is found, the chances are that far less iron will be retained.

In pernicious anemia, for example, experimental evidence shows that the gastric juice lacks something needed to complete digestion, which in turn affects the secretions from the liver. Just what this constituent is has not as yet been determined. But it is known that if beefsteak is subjected to the action of normal gastric juice before it is eaten [predigested] it will provide this mysterious substance. Another method is the feeding of liver or the injection of liver extract inasmuch as this organ harbors the missing ingredient.

Still another factor is the rapidity with which food passes through the intestinal tube. If the tract is sensitive—contractions occurring frequently — nutritional products may be passed along so quickly that absorption is impossible. Not enough time elapses for the soaking up of indispensable materials. This may account for the fact that anemia is a common accompaniment of all forms of colitis, in which the mucous lining has been damaged and its absorbing power reduced greatly. Even though the desired blood making fractions are there they cannot be drawn into the circulating medium because the machinery for so doing has been destroyed—at least, in part. Carry the thought a bit further and it would seem reasonable to assume that should toxins be produced within the bowel they may well neutralize foods or act as specific poisons.

Now all of this carries a forceful lesson—namely, that the first requisite in avoiding anemia—after good meals have been provided, prepared, and eaten—is to make sure that the gastrointestinal tract is behaving as it should. We are learning so much about nutrition, about how important a single lacking link—such as a vitamin—may be, that more and more consideration should be given not only to the selection of the right edibles, but to their fate within the body.

LEAVES NO MARK.

A. writes: Is it necessary to have the Wassermann test made on the arm, or could it be made on some part of the body which would not show? How long does it take before the scar heals?

REPLY.

You have confused the Wassermann test with vaccination against smallpox, which leaves a scar. Syphilis is detected by means of checking the blood. A needle is inserted into a vein, usually near the bend of the elbow, and a teaspoonful of blood is withdrawn. There is no injury. The blood in turn is then transported to a laboratory where it is examined.

SMALL QUANTITIES HARMLESS.

Mrs. F. writes: Is it dangerous for a small child to swallow gum?

REPLY.

SMOKING CHIMNEY.

Chicago, Aug. 11.—[Friend of the People.]—Could anything be done about a building in our neighborhood, the chimney of which emits the most foul smoke almost continually? I believe the chimney is not high enough to carry off the smoke. We cannot enjoy the use of our back porch because of the choking smoke and in the winter when the janitor fires the furnace one cannot see across the street. N. K.

This complaint has been assigned for immediate investigation and the department will follow up the matter until the smoke nuisance has been entirely abated.

CATCH BASIN REPAIRED.

Chicago, Aug. 11.—[Friend of the People.]—The sewer in front of 5913-15 South Parnell avenue is in need of repair. After every rain the street remains flooded for days at a time. This sewer was damaged a few years ago when new curbstones were built and the street paved. R. W.

The catch basin was repaired at 5915 South Parnell avenue. Satisfactory service now prevails at the location.

THE SAND HOG MOVES SLOWLY.

Chicago, Aug. 18.—At 10 a. m. yesterday I started to the loop with my car and found the boulevard bridge open to allow a sand hog to go through.

After a loss of ten minutes, I went on to an errand on Randolph street. After this I started for the west side. Found the Randolph street bridge open to let Mr. Sand Hog go by.

After a loss of another ten minutes, I did another errand on Halsted street and started east on Roosevelt road. Bridge open to allow the same Mr. Sand Hog to pass.

How long are we going to stand for this sort of thing? J. M. VALERIO.

A KIND WORD FOR MODERN TRAINS.

Marquette, Mich., Aug. 17.—I like THE TRIBUNE'S attitude toward the railroads in their present desperate struggle to keep going.

I recently was a passenger on the City of Denver, from Chicago to Denver and return. When I saw the elegance of that famous train, its great speed, its modern equipment, I thought the North Western and Union Pacific deserved success. The same spirit of progress is shown by the Century and the Broadway and by numerous other roads catering to the traveling public.

If Roosevelt is looking for something on which to spend a few billions of dollars I'd recommend assistance to the railroads—which in my opinion are the backbone of the nation. Think what prosperous railroads would mean—better wages for hundreds of thousands of men, both working for the companies directly and also indirectly, as in the steel mills, the iron mines, the infinitude of technical shops that help make the modern carriers what they are today. A. J. R.

PROPOSES ADRENALIN.

Chicago, Aug. 16.—Every year, especially during the summer, lives are lost every week by drowning. Usually if the body is soon recovered, efforts are made to revive the victim by artificial respiration. This is commendable but often unsuccessful. If adrenalin is injected the chances for life are multiplied, but evidently not many people know this. So the next time you are present when some one has just drowned, risk 5 cents and five minutes of your time to call a doctor to give an adrenalin injection, and you may save a life. Don't neglect the artificial respiration, though.

UP TO HEALTH DEPARTMENT.

Chicago, Aug. 17.—In answer to Mrs. C.'s letter asking if there is a law to prevent tenants on upper floors from shaking mops carpets, and rugs out of windows let me reply that there is such a law, and this law is governed by the health department.

Can't we have some definite answer to this question by some one from the health department?

PIANO ON THE PROGRAM.

Chicago, Aug. 18.—May I second the motion made by "West Side Music Teacher" regarding a piano competition for next year's Tribune Music Festival?

Certainly the piano, which is capable of producing sounds which only a full orchestra could duplicate, deserves a place on your inspiring festival program.

You have shown it does by presenting Alec Templeton this year. May this be the "seed" for unknown pianists to work for such a grand goal!

IN DEFENSE OF NAVAL ARCHITECTS.

Beloit, Wis., Aug. 19.—Your recent editorial entitled "A Lesson in Ship Design" is extremely unfair to the profession of naval architecture. You charge us with stubborn adherence to tradition, saying that commercial shipbuilding in this country has languished because we have been afraid "to kick tradition overboard."

It appears you have based these accusations on an article in a nontechnical magazine describing the design of one small vessel, a yacht. You refer to commercial shipbuilding, yet you have apparently neglected to consider the actual commercial ships built during the last few years or now under construction. One vessel recently delivered, a tanker, with a length of over 500 feet, is the largest ship in the world to be virtually 100 per cent welded. The design and method of construction of this vessel are far in advance of current practice abroad and are comparable to the progressive design and fabrication methods found in other branches of engineering and industry.

Your editorial should have been written after studying more technical publications. If so, you would not have so incorrectly accused us of being unprogressive, but would have understood why we must sometimes accept radically new ideas with some caution. You would have realized that the design of a ship involves many more variables than most engineering problems. While the model tank findings enable us to determine quite accurately a suitable form for the ship, the calculation of the strength of the various structural members is very complex and cannot be performed with as much accuracy as in other types of structures where the operating conditions are not so variable and the structure is less complicated.

A new ship design cannot be tested in the same manner as an automobile or airplane design, where one unit of a new series may economically be tried out, and destroyed if necessary, to check the calculations. The naval architect must design for a ship life of at least twenty years, knowing that on every voyage hundreds of lives and thousands of dollars' worth of cargo depend upon the ship living up to her job under every possible condition of storm, grounding, collision, and fire.

He must also meet the requirements of the classification societies and government inspection agencies. In the face of these problems the ship designer must combine new, progressive ideas with past experience to produce a complete design that will, throughout the ship's life, be a successful engineering structure and a profitable investment for the owner.

THE PRESIDENT "BOOSTED" HIM.

Chicago, Aug. 18.—Why not boost a real, deserving man for President? Namely, Dr. Arthur Morgan, regardless of his political affiliations. What this country needs is more men of Dr. Morgan's calibre as public servants.

G. J. STROHMENGER.

FROM A NORTH SHORE BONDHOLDER.

New Hampton, Ia., Aug. 18.—In today's TRIBUNE, with relation to the closing down of the Chicago North Shore and Milwaukee railroad, I note the ridiculous suggestion made by Harry E. Schenk, federal conciliator, that the road's bondholders put up another $50,000 to be used to pay the next two months' deficits which would result should the road continue to operate at the present wage scale.

This money would no doubt be used to pay further salaries and wages to a group of workers who refuse to lend coöperation and a helping hand in maintaining a legitimate business and their jobs by taking a slight reduction in their wages. They would rather go on government relief than help maintain a business operated for their benefit at a loss to the investors and owners over the years.

I am one of the unfortunate bondholders of this railroad. I have received no interest nor any kind of return on my investment for many years. I have had nothing—the workers have got it all. I can starve in so far as the railroad union is concerned.

I am certainly opposed to Mr. Schenk's suggestion that the bondholders make any further contribution. As a bondholder I cannot see why it is incumbent on me to provide a business for workers without any gain or profit to myself. As an investor my present position will remain unchanged should the North Shore railroad be permanently abandoned, the tracks torn up, and the whole thing sold as junk. In fact, I strongly favor such a procedure.

I believe this expresses the true sentiment of many other unfortunate investors in this railroad, who sincerely believed they were helping to build a better America when first making the investment. B. A. BRIGADIER.

NO PURGE OF COMMUNISTS.

Chicago, Aug. 19.—It is disheartening to contemplate the sorry state of affairs of our country today. The President has ordered dissenters from within his own party taken for a political ride because they obstruct his self-conceived plans to dominate the judicial as well as the legislative branches of government.

But I have yet to hear the President announce a purge of the communistic elements in his administration or to denounce the activities of bolshevik agitators such as Harry Bridges and others of his stripe, who have diligently gone their instructed way, sowing their seeds of discord and unrest, and effectively destroying the morale of a portion of the working men of America. O'CONNOR.

FAR SIGHTED.

Chicago, Aug. 18.—"Roosevelt, Mex." was the title of an editorial which you published during the presidential campaign of 1920, in which Mr. Roosevelt ran for the vice presidency.

THE TRIBUNE and the man who wrote this editorial should be commended for extraordinary farsightedness. You cleverly envisioned the man nearly twenty years ago. J. Q. GOWLAND.

Half a Million "Man's Castles"

Your Philadelphian's idea of a home follows the age-old dream of Man's Castle. Stately or modest, the Philadelphia single-family home is a place of freedom and security for private family life. The head of that home is ambitious to provide it with every modern convenience and comfort for joyful, contented living.

Happiness for a Philadelphian is home planning . . . his greatest joy, making home dreams come true.

Today he may have his fun in doing homely tasks—a bit of pruning . . . a paint touch-up on porch or lawn furniture . . . a hobby job in his home workshop . . .

And, tomorrow—thrill the family by deciding to install automatic heat!

One of the most generous users of food and grocery products is this man's family. Because his is an individual home, where regular family meals are prepared! Because, too, it is a Philadelphia custom to entertain at home!

His interest in individual home life has built his city into America's largest market for home products . . .

Regard for that interest, through the years, has made a Philadelphia newspaper — The Evening Bulletin—one of America's largest daily newspapers. For thirty-three years, The Evening Bulletin has led all Philadelphia daily newspapers—morning or evening— in circulation.

A leadership unique in the history of American newspapers published in cities that compare in size with Philadelphia!

And The Bulletin's growth—its leadership, is the result of reader interest. Subscriber contests, premiums, prizes, have never been used.

Just as Philadelphia is the exceptional city in number of individual homes and home needs,* so also it is unusual in the nation as a great market with thorough advertising coverage by one newspaper alone.

More Home Needs: Roof-top to Basement

Single-family homes use more equipment, more appliances, more foods, more cleansers . . . Nine out of ten dwellings in Philadelphia are single-family homes. More single-family dwellings than in New York City and Buffalo combined; than in Chicago and St. Louis together; than in both Detroit and Cleveland. More than in any of twenty-two states.

Mary J. Fetzer Debut Added to September List

BY JUDITH CASS.

THE latest debut party to be added to the long list for September is one that Mr. and Mrs. Wade Fetzer will give for their daughter, Miss Mary Jane Fetzer. It will be on Wednesday, Sept. 7, from 5 until 8 o'clock, at the Fetzer home in Hinsdale. Mr. and Mrs. Fetzer are not calling it a formal debut for their attractive young daughter; Mrs. Fetzer says the tea is to give Miss Fetzer a chance to "meet and greet old and new friends, our friends and hers."

So, after all, it is a debut in the traditional sense of the word. The Fetzers have lived in their house thirty-four years, so much sentiment will be attached to the party. Mr. and Mrs. Fetzer and their daughter are spending the summer at their Michigan home, Sequoia Chalet, at Glen Arbor, but they will be back in Hinsdale late this week.

Mrs. Fetzer is hoping that Sept. 7 will be a fair day, for she plans to have music and dancing in the garden. Miss Fetzer is entering Northwestern university the week following her debut. She was graduated cum laude last June from the Emma Willard school in Troy, N. Y.

Helen Gambrill Makes Her Debut Same Day.

Some of those who enjoy the Fetzers' hospitality on Sept. 7 undoubtedly will enjoy that of the Junior Richard Gambrills before or after the Fetzer tea, for Miss Helen Gambrill also is making her debut that afternoon. Her tea will be given at the Exmoor club in Highland Park. Miss Gambrill will return to Vassar in the fall.

Another Winnetka debutante to be added to the already long list is Miss Helen Chancellor, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Justus Chancellor Jr. Miss Chancellor is spending the summer in northern Wisconsin. Her parents and younger sisters, Patty, Imogene, and Barbara, are at the family farm in Mundelein, and Justus III., who will enter Yale this fall, is in Michigan.

As soon as the family has gathered again under their Winnetka roof Mrs. Chancellor and Helen will set a date for the latter's debut, which will be a luncheon in September.

Miss Phyllis Elsa Hollands, whose debut is to be a tea at the home of her parents, Dr. and Mrs. Augustus Hollands, on New Year's day, is to have a September party, too. Dr. and Mrs. Hollands will give a supper-dance for their daughter on Sept. 9 at the North Shore Country club.

Jane Allen to Bow at Tea Dance Sept. 17.

Still another September debut will be that of Miss Jane Allen. She will be presented at a tea dance on Saturday, Sept. 17, at the Winnetka Woman's club by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. C. Durand Allen. Miss Allen recently completed a year at Pine Manor college. She plans to enter the National College of Education in February.

Miss Tita Johnson is visiting her uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. Ayres Boal, at their summer home in Charlevoix, Mich. Miss Johnson will be introduced to society by her mother, Mrs. Stewart Johnson, at a tea at the Casino on Nov. 4.

Miss Jane Cheney, whose debut is to be a tea-dance on Dec. 26 at the Indian Hill club, has left with her mother, Mrs. F. Goddard Cheney of Winnetka, to spend two or three weeks at their cabin at the Huron Mountain club. Mr. and Mrs. Cheney, Mr. and Mrs. Marcus D. Richards,

Sub-Debutante Enjoys Summer

[TRIBUNE Photo.]

Sub-deb Blanny Wrigley may be known as Miss Ada Blanche Wrigley after she makes her debut in two or three years, but now she always is called by her nickname. This attractive picture of the elder daughter of the Philip K. Wrigleys was taken at Lake Geneva, Wis., where the Wrigleys have their summer home.

Persian Lamb Is Sensation of New Fur Coats

BY RHEA SEEGER.

What the fur designers have accomplished with pelts of gleaming, silky black Persian is something that will make fashion history this fall. For the first time plenty of youthful snap and smartness have been "worked" into the coats. Persian lamb comes in black, brown, or gunmetal gray.

This fur no longer is the mark of the conservative, the pet model of the dowager or the coat of the woman so insistent upon service that she declares "to heck with fashion."

Persian lamb coats of 1938 are sophisticated, young, slim.

The designers have done unusual things with Persian—cut them short with a fine sharp flair to the streamline, laced the edges of the sleeves, and the front edges with lovely contrasting velvet ribbon, even designed gloves of doeskin, also laced with narrow velvet ribbon. The result is not only exceptionally easy on the eye, but proof that inventive designers have created something new for the fur coat parade. Flexible, soft pelts have been used in the blouse backed coats. The skins have been suavely worked, handled as if the pelts were fabric. Even the well dieted figures can wear such coats this winter and appear exquisitely groomed as well as amazingly slender in streamline.

Sharply outlined straight line Persian coats have straight line sleeves that will be easy to slip over the most intricate of dress sleeves. Other stunning models have new full sleeves, and still others have the shorter length to wear with long slip-on gloves.

All purpose coats have been expertly designed. They are as individual as anything stressed for afternoon. Most of the simple line coats have all the opulence and desirability of a similar style in mink. They can be worn daytime or evening.

All collars are extremely small on the newest models, but the necklines fit snugly and warmly. Superworkmanship, fine, expertly selected skins, and that last word in inspired design have redeemed the black Persians from any former stodginess. They're among the smartest coats to be found.

New U. of I. Record

Urbana, Ill., Aug. 21.—[Special.]—Last year's record enrollment at the University of Illinois may be exceeded this fall. A total of 3,458 permits to new students to enter have been issued by the registrar's office. This is an increase of fifty-eight over the number granted at this time a year ago.

Dance Masters Foresee Grace if Not Waltz

BY MARCIA WINN.

To be exact, declares Louis Stockman of Indianapolis, who for eleven years has been teaching the Chicago Association of Dancing Masters how to dance, the dancing masters are tired of talking about the waltz. Always, they are wrong.

A decade ago, when the Charleston began to shake the chandeliers, they began to extol the waltz. The Charleston and all its breed, they said, were parvenus. Well, they still say that, but they now say the parvenus, rather than the waltz, are here to stay.

This year, in self-defense, Mr. Stockman is introducing a new dance to be known as "Jitterbug."

Jitterbug is the word commonly used for the animated young devotees of swing music. Mr. Stockman, with a glint in his eye, has devised a dance that catches every beat in swing.

"In the fox trot," he explained, "we use only the first and third beats, but in this you use every beat. It's a—well, it's a hop dance.

"Why am I teaching it? Because," indignantly, "I have to. It's not good dancing, and it's not good business, because that kind of dancing is done mostly by kids who don't take lessons, but well, we have to teach variety."

Mr. Stockman asserts, however, that swing music is already on the way out, to be succeeded by something known as "sweet swing." He doesn't know why they call it "sweet." It is merely slower.

Anyway, he has a dance for it, too. It's to be known as the Silver Jubilee, in honor of the twenty-fifth convention, and in it you spend all your time crossing and uncrossing your feet and "twinkling," a fast to and fro movement.

It's graceful, too, he says—like the waltz.

Windsor Healthier as Married Man, Says Gladys Swarthout

Gladys Swarthout had much to say about the duke and duchess of Windsor yesterday as she rested for her appearance tonight with the Chicago Civic Opera orchestra in a free Grant park concert. Miss Swarthout and her husband, Frank Chapman, met the royal couple aboard a liner near the French Riviera. Marriage has done a lot for the duke, she said, because he appears healthier than he did fourteen years ago.

The concert will be given at 8 o'clock at the band shell opposite 11th street. All seats are free and unreserved.

Looking at Hollywood
By Ed Sullivan

The Week's Wash

Hollywood, Cal., Aug. 21.—Wendy Barrie's real interest is Wall Streeter Jerry Gordon. She's a big click in the Edward G. Robinson flicker. . . . The Borrah Minnevitches are adopting a baby girl so that Lydia will have a sister. . . . Universal is trying to reunite Director Litvak, Charles Boyer, and Danielle Darrieux, the "Mayerling" combination, for her next. . . . With Norman Krasna resigning his producer's post at M.-G.-M. in favor of writing, it means that "Broadway Melody," "On Borrowed Time," and the Hecht-MacArthur stories must be assigned to other producers. . . . By the time you read this, Toby Wing and Dick Merrill may have seen a preacher in N. Y. . . . George Brent and Merle Oberon are a four-alarm blaze. . . . Paula Stone with Ben Alexander. . . . John Howard and Kay Griffith at Victor Hugo's.

The Jon Halls [Frances Langford] expect Sir Stork. . . . Every studio in Hollywood flooded with scripts on the Jimmy Hines' trial. . . . After "Trade Wind" the Fredric Marches go east, probably in October, to do a play. . . . Walt Disney has a deal on for Ravel's "Bolero." . . . Add Skyline Effects: Jinx Falkenberg, on Eddie Grainger's arm. Jimmy's lad does all right by himself in a nice, quiet way. . . . Patricia Ellis eastbound to appear in the Casa Manana revue. . . . Paramount stuck its neck out by announcing its ban on newspaper advertising. The announcement was made as part of the "good will movie" campaign! . . . Hollywood Park, the Inglewood track, declared a 20 per cent dividend.

Don't be too, too surprised if Robert Benchley gets the title rôle in "Wizard of Oz." W. C. Fields, Hugh Herbert, and Ed Wynn are other nominees. . . . "Run, Little Chillun" is being held over on Los Angeles stages as a result of the spurt in business. . . . Groucho Marx and Bob Riskin are forming a Hollywood organization opposed to communism, Fascism, and Naziism. In other words, Groucho and Riskin propose an organization for Americanism.

George White is in New York digging up a $600,000 bank roll for his world's fair show. He plans motion picture names as headliners for a huge "Scandals," with four shows a day, one matinée and three night shows. Felix Ferry will have a world's fair replica of Monte Carlo, with everything but the gambling. He is digging up a $500,000 bank roll . . . He got seventeen yearlings at Saratoga and will race them at Inglewood next summer. . . . William Powell hopeful that this next operation will wind it up. He's had more than his share of grief.

Forty-one pictures in production this week. . . . Walter Pidgeon rates the new contract M.-G.-M. handed him. He's done splendid work. . . . Ken Murray is in on a percentage agreement in the Larry Schwab show. . . . Two studios bidding for the life story of Benny Fields as a Crosby picture, with Fields holding out for $15,000. . . . Add Curios: Mark Sandrich, the Fred Astaire-Ginger Rogers director, is the son of the Jewish chaplain who was at Sing Sing when Lefty Louie, Gyp the Blood, Becker and the other Rosenthal murderers went to the hot squat. . . . Line from Paris that Theda Bara and Charles Brabin were married there is puzzling. They've been Mister and Missus for some seventeen years. Clark Gable goes east for a New England vacation in the next ten days.

RKO has "Room Service" and "Carefree" ready for the exchanges. . . . Paramount has "If I Were King" ready for delivery. . . . Wait until you get a load of Edward G. Robinson swinging "The Big Apple" in "I Am the Law." He is good enough to enter the Harvest Moon ball. . . . Lee Shubert says he'll mow me down for saying that the Shuberts broke a contract with Argentinita, pointing out that "International Revue" was a Lew Leslie production. Lee, so help me, I am mortified. . . . Sir Stork is expected at the William Wellmans', the Bing Crosbys', the Harry Ritzes'. . . . In Vogue's pictures of Lady Mendl's party the editors evidently couldn't identify two of the guests. The ones they couldn't identify were Mr. and Mrs. Darryl Zanuck.

BY ANNA NANGLE.

This movie portrays the old, old story of the woman of many amours, who learns bitterly that "as ye sow ——."

Nina Petrovna is a cruel courtesan and, after many gay years of toying with men, is finally forced, coldly and unkindly, to discard for his own good the one man she sincerely loves.

Isa Miranda, the feminine lead, will undoubtedly remind you of Marlene Dietrich. Her features are rather similar and she has a low, husky voice. Mr. Gravet returns to the screen speaking his native French this trip, and is gay and impetuous as a young army lieutenant. His love for Nina involves him in a duel with his good friend and superior officer, Baron Engern, who is also Nina's paramour. In order to save a life the lady for the first time discards a man when it pains her to do so.

Direction, photography, etc., are adequate. The dialog is entirely in French, with English subtitles.

This tragedy has rather a musty air about it, but smooth performances by a competent cast and occasional deft comedy touches make it quietly entertaining.

Naziism Forbidden at Schwaben Verein Picnic; 20,000 Attend

Traditional jollity and beer drinking prevailed yesterday among 20,000 persons who attended the 61st annual picnic of the Schwaben verein in Riverview park. The organization consists of those whose families came from Swabia, a region in Germany.

Naziism was barred. Recently officials of the organization formally urged all members to reject all foreign propaganda.

High points of the festivities were two dramatic productions. One was "Snow White and the Seven Dwarfs." The other was the light opera, "Leichte Kavallerie," by Von Suppe. Today the picnic will be repeated.

Tenderfoot's Inheritance

By Marie De Nervaud

SYNOPSIS.

Anne Claxton arrives from New York at the Wyoming ranch she has inherited, after refusing the last minute proposal of her city beau, Gerald. Steve Hayward, neighbor ranch owner, tells her that Jake Collins, who owns the adjoining ranch, expects to buy her heavily mortgaged ranch, but her uncle never would sell to him. Anne determines to stay and fight. She is immediately attracted to Steve, but Gwen Collins, Jake's daughter, shows a proprietary interest in him. She wins over old Tim Salter, her uncle's foreman, and Whitey, a handsome ranch hand. She finds the house in disorder and a gun missing from the rack. Tim thinks Collins had been there and threatened her uncle with the gun and that her uncle died from a heart attack. Collins calls with Lawyer Bill Jennings and turns ugly when she refuses to sell. When Steve calls and advises her to sell she is cool to him. Steve is offended and jealous of Whitey. To help surmount financial difficulties Anne writes to invite her former boss, Mr. Trainor, and his family to the ranch as paying guests. Collins serves notice that he is going to fence in the water holes, which he claims are on his property.

INSTALMENT XIII.

A WELCOME LETTER.

There was something very appealing about Whitey's seriousness over the riding lessons. At all other times, his shyness had the upper hand, and Anne had not yet succeeded in penetrating through his embarrassed reserve.

But the minute they were both mounted it was another story. Whitey was mercilessly critical of every detail. As a result, Anne was making remarkable strides in this important new accomplishment.

Holding Rocket with a firm hand, she practiced the trick of relaxing her shoulders, as her mount kept up his fast cowtrot around the corral. In her absorption, all her worries were obliterated from her mind. An exhilarating excitement stirred her blood as she gradually felt herself catching the rhythm of her mount.

Anne looked up to find Whitey perched on the rail.

"Rocket hasn't thrown me yet," she called out. "Where are we going for our ride this morning?" She pulled up beside the fence.

"I can't go," Whitey announced. "Tim wants me to lead up to the north range pronto."

"Let me go with you!" Anne urged. "I really am beginning to catch the trick of the trot. A long ride over the mesa might just cinch it."

"You're not ready for such a long ride yet." Whitey's tone was regretful, but firm. "Besides, no tellin' what I'll run into up there."

"What will you actually do, Whitey, if you find them putting up

"It wouldn't come to shooting, would it?"

fences," Anne inquired anxiously. "I've been imagining all sorts of things! It——it wouldn't come to shooting or——or violence, would it?"

"Might, but don't you worry. Tim and I'll handle that end of it." He started off, then turned back for a last work. "Better not take Rocket out until I come back. You can practice that trot in the corral."

With an exhilarating sense of stealing a march on Whitey and Tim, Anne swallowed her lunch and made for the corral.

Her heart thumped with excitement as she let down the bars and led Rocket outside. Another minute and she was in the saddle, headed for the slope behind the ranch house.

The rough road, which could hardly be dignified by so definite a name, brought vivid memories of the momentous day when she had seen it first, driving out beside Steve.

She could see so clearly his brown profile and the modeling of his lean face, with its high cheek bones, and the tiny wrinkles about the corners of the eyes.

She thought back to the supreme satisfaction and sense of security she had felt with him. His mere presence had set the occasion of seeing her ranch for the first time, on the plane of high adventure. Why hadn't she at least kept his friendship?

Settling to Rocket's trot, sometimes catching its rhythm, and then again bumping ignominiously, Anne finally sighted the distant gleam of the letter box.

It was the first time she had come for the mail. Her heart gave a sudden leap at the sight of a second box beside hers, with an S. H. on it. Why hadn't it occurred to her that Steve's letter box might be there, at the boundary of the two ranches?

"Not that it makes any difference," she announced aloud. But in her heart, she knew that it did make a difference. After this she was coming for the mail herself.

Anne guided Rocket close to the box, and reached down to pull it open. The sight of Mr. Trainor's heavy stationery that she knew so well brought a quick stir of excitement.

Her fingers trembled as she tore it open. For a moment, she could hardly bring herself to read it. If the answer was "no," the ranch was doomed! She couldn't hope to fight Jake Collins without money to hire extra punchers, even if by some hook or crook she could manage to pay off the interest on the mortgage.

The length of the letter scared her. That must mean that he was explaining why he couldn't come. Ending the suspense, Anne spread it open and devoured the typewritten words.

"Dear Anne Claxton:

"It was a great surprise to hear of this new enterprise of yours. I have talked it over with my wife and we have decided to try a summer on your ranch, as you suggest."

Sudden tears dimmed Anne's eyes at these incredible words. It had been such a slender hope! She wiped her eyes with her sleeve, and went on:

"I am sending a draft for seventeen hundred dollars to be deposited in your name in the National Bank of Red Butte. This I understand will cover our stay for two months. The idea of a summer on a venture directed toward building up a 'dude' ranch, and that no outsiders but ourselves will be there.

"I have faith in your executive ability and am glad to be able to help put the ranch on its feet. We will all be much interested to see it, and will plan to arrive on June 15.

"With all good wishes,

"Sincerely yours, JOHN TRAINOR."

In her excitement over Mr. Trainor's letter, Anne had failed to notice the rest of her mail. Now she saw the small precise handwriting on a gray envelope that once so stirred her blood.

Why was Gerald writing?

She tore it open with curiosity, if not emotion, and read it through with a queer feeling of dipping into the past of some one else.

How like Gerald to ignore her attitude and calmly assume that nothing was changed between them! The letter might have been written at any time during the last two years. It was an amusing recital of New York events, ending with a quizzical inquiry as to the probable length of the Wild West venture.

Anne quietly folded the letter and put it in her pocket along with the precious one from Mr. Trainor.

As she headed Rocket for home a wave of thanksgiving swept over her, both for her escape from the thraldom of Gerald, and for this opportunity to make something of the ranch.

"We're going to win out, Rocks!" she exulted. "We have our chance!"

With a reckless disregard of consequences, she gave him a peremptory touch of the spurs.

After one indignant and astonished bolt, Rocket buckled up and plunged into a magnificent sunfish twist that sent Anne flying over his head.

With a rebellious snort, he galloped for home. When Anne finally sat up with a dazed sense of having encountered a tornado, he was only a streak in the distance.

Anne watched him with a rueful grin at her own audacity.

"I guess Whitey was right about my not knowing as much about riding as I thought I did," she admitted. She stretched experimentally to see that no bones were broken. "I hope I can get back before either he or Tim do, so that they needn't know anything about it."

She got to her feet and started gamely on the homeward hike.

Lie Girl Told 'Unimportant' Man Is Worry

BY DORIS BLAKE.

"After vainly trying to figure out my problem, I am appealing to you, so please answer soon in your column as my future rests on your advice and I feel I cannot stand the indecision much longer.

"About two years ago I was extended an invitation for an evening entertainment by a young man in whom, at the time, I had no interest. The result of the first invitation brought others.

"During the course of our friendship my new boy friend inquired about my age, and that is where I probably made my first mistake. Since my appearance is youthful and feeling at that time it was not necessary to tell him, I said I was several years younger than he.

"Truth be told, I am a year older. That in itself would be nothing but for the fact that some one among his friends brought up the subject of age and claimed that I was considerably older than he dreamed. This boy stanchly defended me and when he told me about the discussion instead of telling the truth then my courage deserted me.

"If in the beginning I had realized that our friendship was going to assume a deeper meaning I most certainly would not have told that lie. I dread the ordeal now of proclaiming myself a liar to one who has the utmost faith in me. What shall I do?

"UNHAPPY."

Get it over with, Unhappy! Tell the young man your story exactly as you have told it to me. Tell him that the age question didn't seem important when he asked you, but now that you have put him in a position of defense you want to be honest with him. As you say, a year's difference in age is nothing. You can always show the chap your birth certificate in case you think he doubts your word.

AN OPEN LETTER TO DARRYL F. ZANUCK

Dear Darryl Zanuck:

With the whole world acknowledging your craftsmanship, I wish to add my personal congratulations for a motion picture that will live long after others have been forgotten. "Alexander's Ragtime Band" truly tops the list of achievements that mark your brilliant career.

To take a simple little love story and weave around it a production of such magnitude as "Alexander's Ragtime Band" is certainly the work of genius and that is what you have accomplished. As if by magic, you transformed a popular song into living drama with heart and soul.

Since you have assumed leadership of Twentieth Century-Fox productions you have enriched the screen with beauty, new ideas, progressive trends and refreshing new personalities. Your foresight and master showmanship have been a vital stimulant to the entire motion picture industry.

It is indeed a privilege to be associated with an industry that boasts of men like you, who give so unstintingly of themselves to their work, to make people happier.

Sincerely,

Johnt Balaban

Well, here it is at last! IT, if you don't remember, is the jam and jelly book which I've been working on for months. It ought to be pretty good, considering the time it has taken, oughtn't it?

The book, in a bright yellow jacket consists of forty odd pages of recipes for jams, jellies, butters, marmalades, preserves and conserves. The collection is called "Mary Meade's Best Jams and Jellies." Many of the recipes in it are some I use every year.

Here are a few of the recipes you'll want to try within the next few weeks: Damson plum conserve, plum jam, apple butter, apple and tomato butter, spiced peach jam, polychrome conserve, apple and quince jelly, apple mint jelly, green gage plum marmalade, peppermint marmalade, tutti frutti marmalade, peach preserves, tomato preserves, watermelon rind preserves.

There are recipes for year around use. Orange jelly and citrus marmalade, for example, may be made at any time during the year. So may those jams and conserves made with dried fruits. Pinecot jam, than which nothing is more delicious, calls for dried apricots and canned pineapple, and may be made at any time when supplies of other jams run low.

The beauty about this kind of canning—making jams and preserves, I mean, is that they may be made in small batches at odd moments, as fruits come in season. Before she knows it, a housewife will have a whole shelf full of beautiful, bright bread spreads and meat accompaniments.

To prove that the book contains more than just recipes, here's the subject index for the section on jellies: Jelly Troubles, Tests for Pectin, Extracting the Juice for Jelly, Making a Jelly Bag, General Directions for Making Jellies, What to Do with Jelly Which Doesn't Jell. There are 33 recipes for jellies, in addition, in that portion of the book.

The problem of what to do when jellies won't jell always has been a perplexing one. This book tells reasons for this difficulty and suggests remedies. In the event that the error in making the jelly was irremediable, there are suggested ways for using the sirupy jelly.

The new booklet will be mailed for 23 cents, or may be picked up for 20 cents at one of the Tribune Public Service offices, Tribune Tower Lobby and 1 South Dearborn street. Address all mail requests to Mary Meade, Chicago Tribune.

Antimacassar Set in Mid-Victorian Style Wins Favor

BY ELLEN BRUCE.

The mid-Victorian touch is becoming more and more pronounced in the matter of interior decoration, since homemakers have discovered it may be used with certain other periods more effectively than ever before. The crochet antimacassars have discarded their more formal title and have become quite simply chair backs or head rests with arm sets to match. Wagon wheels have become an important part of the revival of early Americana, and the popular crochet patterns of the various wheel designs are reigning supreme. The chair set crocheted in the wagon wheel pattern, illustrated, is a lacy, lovely group, with simplicity as the keynote of the design to make it attractive to beginners as well as experienced crochet workers. White or ecru thread No. 10 is the choice of these sets.

(For instructions for crocheting the chair set in wagon wheel design, No. X45, send 10 cents in stamps or coin to the Needlework Bureau, Chicago Tribune, 220 Fifth avenue, New York City.)

Use Thought in Buying Books for Children

BY GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS.

In buying playthings or in supplying materials at home for your young children to play with or to "do" with, I've often suggested you follow your little boy's or girl's interests—that is, watch what they talk about, what they will stand gazing at, how they use their imaginations as well as their muscles, and you'll find yourself getting the right things to hold their interest and to stir them to creative play.

The same thing holds true in regard to books. To many people, either those buying books as presents or to parents just buying books as an everyday matter, fairy tales may seem to be a stock favorite. But the fairy tale is not for the little child.

"What is, then?" is what you probably want to know next.

As a clew to what sort of book to buy for a small boy or girl, sum up what you have noticed they are much interested in.

What do little children under 5 have an intense interest in? Quick as a flash your answer should be animals. Dogs, cats, ducks, horses, rabbits, squirrels, lions—domestic and farm animals, wild animals such as live in our own country or in zoos.

So then, books about animals they adore. These are legion—either telling about animals realistically, or investing them with sane human attributes, or perhaps habits. "Peter Rabbit" and "Tom Kitten" and "The Little Brown Bear" are examples of these.

When children are small, simple rhymes and jingles—short ones, remember—they love. Of course, the first example that comes to mind of a book that fits that taste is good old "Mother Goose." There are many others the children love on the book counters.

The third thing you will notice holds the interest of the small ones is the story of everyday doings of little boys and girls just their own age. These are not easy to find, and often you have to resort to telling them yourself. But occasionally you will find one, and when you do it will be probably worn to tatters.

It is hardly necessary for me to mention that when children are little the more pictures a book has, the better. In looking over the illustrations keep in mind that pictures should be absolutely clear. Avoid those which some of our best artists mistakenly draw—those which are confused because definiteness has been sacrificed to the desire to be decorative or impressionistic. Avoid any book containing frightening or grotesque pictures.

Next, look over the text. Do not buy a book which portrays alarming or unhappy situations. Little children enter too wholeheartedly into their stories for that.

Kalamazoo Church Calls Former Shanghai Pastor

Kalamazoo, Mich., Aug. 21.—[Special.]—The congregation of the First Presbyterian church voted today to extend a call to the Rev. Dr. Luccock's work in China was interrupted by the war. Previous to going to China he was assistant pastor of the First Presbyterian church in Oak Park, Ill., where his father, the Rev. George N. Luccock, was pastor.

Demurely Styled for Autumn

WOMAN'S AND MISS' DRESS.

No matter what your age or figure, you will look well in this demurely styled frock for autumn. College and business girls will like the version sketched at the left, and women in club and social life will favor the styling at the right, since it isn't quite so girlish.

The youthful model combines dull crêpe with a lingerie fabric. The wide Peter Pan collar might be of organdy, with a lace edging to match the lace used for the vestee. The bodice is shirred for fulness, the waistline dips up into the bodice, and the skirt, paneled for flare, hugs the waist and hips. Puffed sleeves lend breadth to the shoulderline. This is an especially feminine frock, and may be made in black or other dark shades.

Prints and plain shades make up equally well in the more matronly version. It has a narrow rolled collar and a soft sash around the waist. The sleeves, which may be either long or short, have squareness at the shoulder-line.

Style No. 3448 is designed for sizes 14, 16, 18, and 20 years, and 32, 34, 36, 38, 40, 42, and 44 inches bust measurement. Size 36 requires 3⅝ yards of 39 inch material, with ⅝ yard of 39 inch contrasting.

Algonquin's Joys End Today for 80 Children

The children, all selected because of poor health, were given the summer's outing by a group of Hyde Park residents, who, for years past, have sent 80 boys and girls to the camp on the principle that "the front yard takes care of its back yard."

With the departure of the all-summer children, the end of Camp Algonquin's 29th season approaches, for its last group of 240 children, each sent for a ten days' outing by readers of THE TRIBUNE, will leave on Aug. 31.

Altogether 1,400 mothers and children have had outings at the camp this summer, Mrs. Astrid Save, director, said. Many notable gains in weight and height have been recorded—each at the cost of a gift of $9.10, sufficient for the outing of one child.

H. S. Soper yesterday gave $25 to the Camp Algonquin fund, and Mrs. E. W. P. contributed $5. The two gifts brought the fund to a total of $1,027.36.

Eighteen gifts, totaling $66.45, were received by the free ice fund, through which needy Chicagoans are given free ice during the heat of summer. These gifts are:

THROUGH THE LOOKING GLASS

Have you a cistern in your home? No? Well, here's a way to bring synthetic rainwater into your life.

If you were one of those lucky kids who every summer visited a grandmother living in the country, you know what a cistern is. And maybe you shuddered when you peeked down into its watery depths. Rain on the roof doesn't mean much to us city dwellers, for we haven't any place to put it.

Of course, we could hang out of the window and catch the gentle drops as they fell, but the neighbors probably would call the police or an alienist if they caught us at it. We do have a place, however, for a box of crystals that glisten like snow in the sun and make the water out of the faucet soft as silk.

Out of the kitchen into the bath was the path that these crystals followed. For keeping hands smooth while doing the dinner dishes, they were invaluable and, used for the bath and washing hands and the face, they prevented irritation of even the delicate skins. They still serve these purposes.

Recently the crystals have been brought out in lavender, fern and gardenia fragrances that add a little luxury to the general idea and give this type a permanent standing in the bathroom.

If you are a home shampooer, you know how irritating it is, after going through this task, to find a soap deposit left in your hair. You can feel it, and your comb and brush show it. Add a few crystals to the water you wash your hair in—and some more to the rinse water. Your hair will be softer and cleaner with none of the highlights dimmed. Summer weather means more shampoos because of perspiration, and here's a way to make the work a lot easier.

Entire Nation Benefits from Music Festival

There was a time, when the festival was new, that critics spoke of its effect on musical history of the middle west, but its reach, they now concede, has extended far beyond.

Here are a few of its tangible effects. On the speakers' platform at Soldiers' field Saturday night, while the great stadium throbbed with the music and emotion of 85,000 people, were men from Iowa, Wisconsin, Ohio, New York.

They were there, not as participants, but as trained observers, assimilating every little bit of information that came their way, so that they might go home to stage their own musical festivals. For so tremendous has been the appeal and success of the Chicagoland festival year after year that others now are trying it in greater and greater numbers. Not the least of which is the New York World's fair.

These observers, for instance, had been dour about the attendance prospects Saturday. They had watched a two hour downpour. The field was drenched, the clouds still were stormy and low, even at 6:15 p. m. They were sadly certain that no one, speaking in terms of thousands, would come.

But they did come. The conservative estimate of their numbers is 85,000. Andy Frain, chief usher, placed it much higher, for his men gave 10,000 people standing room on the ground at the base of the new stone seats and turned away, he says, 30,000.

What brought them under lowering skies to those cold, damp seats?

"It's a refutation of every known law," commented Edward Barry, music critic of THE TRIBUNE, "but just look at them come."

Had they come for Alec Templeton, the blind British pianist? They applauded him wildly. Or for Douglas Corrigan? They stood up and screamed for him. Or for the massed bands, the pageant of dancing put on by the Chicago parks, the symphonic music of Henry Weber and his 100 piece orchestra, the mighty choruses, the young soloists—or to sing themselves?

Whatever the explanation, the effect was so gratifying that long before the ninth festival was over plans for the tenth were being made.

The next festival, Philip H. Maxwell, director, said, will be reunion year. For it he hopes to mass together all the performers of the festival's first decade. Every chorus, every band, every baton twirler, and every star, such as John Charles Thomas, Al Jolson, Marion Claire, Giacomo Rimini, Hilda Burke, and David Rubinoff, who has appeared before a festival audience.

According to CULBERTSON

[Copyright: 1938: By Ely Culbertson.]

It is quite logical, of course, to be guided by the opponents' bidding, but to put more faith in an opponent than in one's partner hardly makes sense. However unsatisfactory a partnership may be, the fact remains that there is at least an attempt to convey usable information. To let an opponent's double frighten one out of a reasonably good contract into another that may be better [but which is apt to be much worse] is supremely foolish.

The bidding:

North	East	South	West
1 heart	1 spade	2 clubs	Double
Pass	2 hearts	Pass	2 spades
2 no trump	Double	3 clubs	Double
3 diamonds	Double	Pass	Pass
Pass

This surprising series of bids was influenced in a large measure by the East-West part-score. North started with one heart because he did not want to "reverse." [To open with one diamond might mean that North would have to show his higher ranking heart suit secondarily and this in turn might force South to the three level in order to show a preference.]

East, who had been ready to bid a heart, changed his horses and overcalled with a spade. He realized there was danger in this overcall, but felt he could run out to two hearts in comparative safety if the spade bid was doubled. South's two club bid was well justified by his trick and a half and the fact that the club suit was seven long. West's double was very bad. True, he had two sure club tricks and the spade king on the side, but, with his partner making an overcall, there was utterly no reason to feel that he could defeat two clubs. Moreover, his length in partner's suit was much more favorable to an offensive contract than it was to the defense of two clubs. West's meager honor holding scarcely justified a free raise of the spades, but it always is possible to pass.

North, with the ace and one club, did not mind the double, but when East bid two hearts, South passed, and West showed a preference for spades, North was decidedly on the spot. He was determined not to give up without further struggle, particularly since South had shown some values by his free club bid. He chose his two no trump bid as a decidedly tentative effort, his idea being that he would run to three diamonds if and when the no trump was doubled.

South, with a seven card club suit and only one sure entry, felt that anything was better than playing at two no trump doubled, hence, despite West's previous club double, properly rebid the suit. West, convinced that the opponents were now "on the run," enthusiastically doubled again. Perhaps it was the tone he used that caused North to make a very bad bid. Just as his ace and one club had been satisfactory support for South's bid at the two level, so that holding should have been equally satisfactory for South's rebid. North should have reasoned that South would not bid three clubs after having been doubled at two without either great length or considerable strength in the suit. The diamond bid was a sheer shot in the dark and, indeed, North was very fortunate to find a 3-3 diamond break that kept him from being slaughtered.

The three club doubled contract would have been an absolute laydown and, of course, would have given North-South game. As it was North had to be careful and was lucky to hold his loss at the three diamond contract to 200 points.

News for the Housewife

It's not a bit difficult to give your bedroom a brand new look if you'll invest in new spreads and draperies. They are sold in sets, nowadays, to make it simpler for you, and if you wish, you can also add an attractive flounce for your dressing table.

One such ensemble that we saw recently was in a pretty checked cotton taffeta. It had the sheen of silk taffeta, and it could be washed satisfactorily. The bedspread was edged in plain blue [the checks being blue and white] and the good looking, pinch plaited draperies had the same trim and were lined in cream sateen.

This set was especially appealing because of its simplicity and the excellent way in which it was made. It was in the medium price range.

VIC MARKOV ELECTED CAPTAIN OF ALL-AMERICANS

SQUAD RESUMES 2 SESSIONS OF PRACTICE TODAY

Coaches Uncover 3 Pass Threats.

BY WILFRID SMITH.

Vic Markov, 216 pound tackle from the University of Washington, who attended Lindblom High school in Chicago, is the captain of the All-American football squad which will face the Washington Redskins one week from Wednesday evening in Soldiers' field.

Markov won the captaincy in the squad election which concluded the first half of the All-Stars' drills at Northwestern university. Close behind Markov in the balloting were Cecil Isbell of Purdue and Jim McDonald of Ohio State. Several others received scattered support. Markov now succeeds to the position held by Sammy Baugh last year, who will invade Chicago with the Redskins to battle the collegians.

Markov Second to Sweeney.

Markov was elected to the All-Star squad by the fans of the United States with a total second only to that received by Chuck Sweeney, Notre Dame end. Markov's vote in the poll conducted by THE TRIBUNE and 150 associated newspapers and radio stations was 1,237,853. Sweeney's total was 1,538,642. More than eight and a half million votes were cast in the players' poll.

"This is the greatest thrill of my life," Markov said when he was notified of his election to the captaincy. "It is entirely unexpected. I thought when I was a member of the Pacific coast championship team and played in the Rose Bowl game that there could be no greater thrill in football. When I was chosen a member of the All-Americans, that was tops. But to be elected captain of the team is an honor of which I had not dreamed.

It'll Be a Real Fight.

"Bo McMillin and the other All-Star coaches already know that all of us will work as hard as we can to beat the Redskins. That's going to be a tough game but I believe we'll come out on top. The Redskins are going to find out that the game is a real fight and not just a forward passing contest conducted by Sammy Baugh."

Markov is 22 years old and is 6 feet tall. He received his bachelor of arts degree from the University of Washington last spring where he majored in education. He has been offered a contract by the Cleveland Rams of the National Professional league, but he has not signed and he may return to Seattle to work and possibly to enter Washington's graduate school.

Markov's parents live at 6722 South Artesian avenue. His father is employed in the construction company operated by Avery Brundage, head of the United States Olympic committee.

Plays Two Years with Lindblom.

Markov played on the Lindblom High school football teams in 1931 and 1932 and was coached by E. L. Moore, one of the veterans of the Public High School league whose teams perennially are in the battle for the city championship. Then, as now, Markov played tackle. He also wrestled and in 1933, a high school senior, he reached the semi-finals of the National A. A. U. tournament.

After working one year in the Chicago stockyards in 1934, Vic followed his brother to the University of Washington. His brother played end on Jimmy Phelan's teams and was graduated last year with a degree in chemical engineering and now is employed in Antioch, Cal.

Wins Three Football Letters.

Young Markov won three football letters at Washington and also won varsity letters in wrestling and track. He holds the heavyweight wrestling championship of the northwest. He puts the shot and throws the discus. Markov is of Croatian descent.

The All-Americans rested yesterday, the first vacation since the boys reported Aug. 12. Several went to the Cubs' games with the Pirates. A few, who live in Chicago or nearby, spent the day at home. This morning the squad will report at 10 o'clock and

BY HOWARD BARRY.

Followers of the college All-Star football squad have seen so many great forward passers in action during the last week that they may have overlooked a half back who made his mark as a fast and elusive runner. That half back is Joe Gray of Oregon State.

At some time in the course of the game with the Washington Redskins a week from Wednesday on Soldiers' field, Gray's teammates may be able to open up a path through the pro defense. And if Gray ever gets an opening, just watch him go.

A Good Passer, Too.

Not that he isn't a good passer, also. When his team tied Southern California, 12 to 12 last year, both of Oregon State's touchdowns were scored on passes—and Gray threw both of them. The one that tied the score was the culmination of a series of tosses, all made by Gray, that advanced the ball from far down the field.

However, with Jack Robbins, Cecil Isbell, and other famous passers on the squad, the coaches are particularly interested in Gray's running ability. His ball carrying was a potent factor in Oregon State's offense during the last three seasons. He has played against other members of the All-Star squad—Perry Schwartz of California, Vic Markov of Washington, Jimmy Coffis of Stanford, and Fred Shirey of Nebraska—and all agree that he is a mighty dangerous man in a broken field.

Got Start in High School.

Gray has lived in Oregon all his life and he never before has been farther east than Nebraska. He was born at Aurora, Ore., and now lives in Portland. He got his first football experience with Roosevelt High school of Portland, playing there for four seasons.

Gray has taken a course in dairy manufacturing work at Oregon State and he hopes to make a career in that line. During his vacations he has been working at an oil plant in Portland.

COOPER, SNEAD PLAY TODAY FOR CANADIAN TITLE

TORONTO, Aug. 21.—(AP)—Harry Cooper of Chicago and Sam Snead of White Sulphur Springs, W. Va., will play eighteen holes of golf at the Mississagua club tomorrow for the Canadian open championship and $400 cash money.

The cash represents the difference between the winner's prize of $1,000 and the $600 second money the loser will get. They failed to settle that matter yesterday in one of the most exciting finishes the tournament ever has seen. Each finished the seventy-two holes with a score of 277.

CARL HUBBELL HAS OPERATION ON ARM TODAY

An X-ray examination yesterday revealed a chip of bone loose in Hubbell's pitching arm. Dr. J. Spencer Speed, bone specialist, will perform the operation.

Dr. Speed said there would be a chance Hubbell could pitch again before the season's end, but Hubbell expressed doubt.

SOX DEFEAT INDIANS, 4-3; THEN LOSE, 3-2

Humphries' Balk Gives Opener to Lyons.

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Cleveland, O., Aug. 21.—The White Sox came close to a record breaking feat today, but swooned under the pressure and the feat didn't materialize. They rose up unexpectedly in the first battle of a double-header with a four run attack in the eighth inning which defeated Cleveland's former pennant hopefuls, 4 to 3. They rallied again late in the second affair for a slim lead, but the Indians also rallied, their outburst coming in the ninth to create an even break on the scores of a rainy afternoon, 3 to 2.

In the first game, Johnny Allen, who at times hates himself as well as the rest of the world, charmed the Chicagoans for seven innings with the mysteries of his pitching, but in the eighth his magic was dispelled by such fellows as Rip Radcliff, Mike Kreevich and Boze Berger. Tempestuous Johnny had to leave with the score tied and a moment later his successor, Jack Humphries, committed a balk on which the winning run scored. All this meant happiness, as well as victory No. 6 for cagey old Ted Lyons, who previously had pitched great ball, despite a yield of three runs.

Rigney Fails as Rescuer.

The second battle was highly interesting even though Jack Knott finally lost it by weakening in the ninth, when John Rigney failed as a rescuer. For eight innings, Knott yielded only three hits, one a homer by Rollie Hemsley. The Sox couldn't retrieve this run off the pitching of Willis Hudlin until the seventh. They did it on a single by Manager Jim Dykes who, although banished to the bench by Umpire Cal Hubbard in the first game, had to get into action as second baseman when Boze Berger was added to the Sox hospital list. Berger suffered a slight spike wound.

Gerald Walker also came in for a bit of heroics which in the end meant only personal satisfaction. His was the hit that put the Sox ahead. It came after Joe Kuhel had singled in the eighth of the second game. The pinch wallop meant nothing because Knott, after reaching the ninth on three hits, yielded two more with one out. Knott was removed at this point and Rigney surrendered a pass as well as a single which blasted the hopes of the Chicagoans for a double triumph.

FIRST GAME

Lyons fanned Heath to open the second inning of the first game and then proceeded to surrender a pair of runs. Averill's fly sailed over Radcliff's head for a triple. Trosky's single to right moved Averill across the plate. Berger threw out Keltner, but could have forced Trosky at second if Appling hadn't been slow in covering the bag. The cost of Appling's leisurely movements was apparent a moment later, Trosky scoring from second on Hale's single. Meanwhile the Sox had accomplished nothing even though they enjoyed a pair of hits in the first inning and a pass and single in the second.

Old Ted was a high class pitcher after the second inning, at least until the seventh which Trosky opened with his seventeenth home run. Trosky was smart about picking his spot for this one. He aimed it into right just inside the foul line which measures only 320 feet. Keltner followed with a single, but Lyons got the next three men.

Balk Lets in Winning Run.

Allen's magic began to leave him when he walked Kuhel to start the eighth. After Owen and Walker had popped out, Radcliff singled to center and Appling walked, filling the bases. Kreevich lined the first pitch for a single, Kuhel and Radcliff scoring

Once Mighty Wilson Taps Out a Single

BY PAT PATTEN.

No one can say Chicago baseball fans are fickle.

Hack Wilson, the pudgy little outfielder whose fifty-six home runs in 1930 established a National league record and earned for their author a salary of $33,000 the following season, returned to town yesterday—to play a semi-pro double-header in Mills stadium for coffee and doughnuts.

Wilson, although the best he could do in six times at bat in the two games was a ground single and a base on balls, must have been a very happy gent as he enjoyed his shower after the games. Eight thousand fans, the largest outpouring the west side park has been since the Dean brothers appeared there in 1934, rose to cheer him when he stepped to the plate for the first time and they remained to applaud every move he made thereafter.

Finishes Day as a Coach.

Although Hack played no important role in the 8 to 5 victory of his McKeesport [Pa.] club over the Mills in the first game nor in its 13 to 1 defeat in the second, he still was the hero of the afternoon and, when his ageing legs failed him in the fifth inning of the second battle, the fans would not let him leave the field. They had come to see him and they protested so vociferously that he finished the afternoon as coach at first base.

Eighteen year old Tony Annerino, who pitched the second game for the Mills, was complete master of the Pennsylvanians. Hack appeared three times but he collected none of the four hits credited to his team.

Wilson, now 38 years old, spoke with longing of his days with the Cubs, the peak of his tempestuous career. His smile was as spontaneous as ever, but his eyes told the story. There were shadows there and one could gather without his saying it that his thoughts were even then in ornate Wrigley field, where 40,000 fans, the same fans who had cheered HIM to the echo only eight years before, were inspiring the new north side idols to double victory over the Pirates.

"What a Town for Baseball."

"Chicago," said Hack, "what a town it is for baseball! What wouldn't I give to come back here to stay in some capacity with a major league club. Cubs or Sox, it wouldn't matter—just so I could step out upon the field and know that my Chicago friends [I DID make some friends, you know, despite the things which were said about me in 1931] were watching me."

When he mentioned his Chicago friends he glanced proudly at the 8,000 who had jammed the wooden stands about him and overflowed into the outfield, and, for the first time, the shadows disappeared from his

His bride . . . who is sadly thinking:
I wonder if he snores.

During the raid on a bookie across the street the phone rang. Sergt. Kelly, who was leading the wood choppers, answered the phone.

"Who won the fourth at Washington?" asked the unknown on the other end of the wire.

"Kelly," was the answer.

Somebody told my boy friend he could make
A lot of money if he'd hire out
As a paid mourner at a public wake
And let his eyes run like a water spout;
He tried it and was getting by first class
When suddenly he got a sneezing spell
Whose vixen mother started to raise hell.

They fired him without a cent of pay,
Believing he was faking tears with snuff;
They said a mourner wouldn't sneeze that way,
And that they knew his sorrow was a bluff;
He looked, when he got back to his own door,

Fight Notes.

I have listened to the broadcasts of several prize fights and when the decision was announced I wondered whether the announcer, the referee, and the judges all were at the same bout. —Bob Namtrah.

When Armstrong beat Ambers he won his third title and quite a bit of change, but somehow when yours truly duplicates the same feat of beating ambers, all I receive is a lecture, a ticket, or a summons to the trafic court. How come? —The Duke.

LEE SCORES 6-4 VICTORY; 2D TO CARLETON, 6 TO 1

40,402 Fans Cheer Double Triumph.

BY EDWARD BURNS.

The Cubs, with 40,402 paying guests applauding their heroics vociferously, yesterday whipped the league leading Pirates in both ends of a double-header, 6 to 4, behind Bill Lee in the first game and 6 to 1, behind Tex Carleton in the afterpiece in Wrigley field.

Through these laudable enterprises the Cubs gained on all the rest of the first division teams of the National league, moving into a tie for third place with the Cincinnati Reds. The most encouraging progress, however, was in relation to the Pirates, whose lead they reduced from an awesome nine games to seven. And a pair of games was more than the Cubs previously had won in a week, their record from last Sunday noon to yesterday noon having been one victory in seven contests.

No. 15 for Bill Lee.

The first game gave Lee his fifteenth victory of the season. Bill bogged down in the ninth, in which he yielded three runs. With the tying runs on base, Bill gave way to Jack Russell, who ended the strain by striking out Bill Brubaker on three pitches. Lee had been glamorous enough before he had to call for succor, however. He had driven in three of the Cubs' six runs with a single and a double, scored another and progressed to third trying for still another run.

The second game gave Tex Carleton his ninth victory and ended a term of invalidism for the tall man from the mesquite country. Up till the seventh Tex yielded only four hits, two of which were infield scratches. There were seven hits in all, two in the ninth.

Brubaker also ended the second game by striking out. He was in the two lineups because Lee Handley was chased in the seventh inning of the first game for protesting a decision at third.

They're a Different Team.

In beating Cy Blanton and Russ Bauers yesterday, the Cubs didn't appear to be the same lads whom old Red Lucas stood on their heads in Saturday's series opener. There is no explanation for the transformation unless you want to attribute it to contagious effects of Phil Cavarretta's presence in the lineup. Phil, the hustlingest member of the Cub ensemble, by several hundred per cent, got into rapid action because of the benching of Frank Demaree, who turned in a bad exhibition Saturday. Phil scored four of the dozen runs the Cubs made during the afternoon and made a single and double in each contest. Beyond that his dash and eagerness seemed to shame some of the drowsiness out of his fellows.

FIRST GAME

Both sides scored in the third inning. The Pirates got theirs on singles by Young, Blanton, and Handley. The Cubs tied the score in this manner: Jurges opened with a single to center and went to second on Lee's only out. Hack singled to right, scoring Jurges, but was out trying to reach second.

The next production was in the Chicago fifth. With one out Cavarretta beat out an infield bouncer. Young tried to charge Jurges' slow hopper, but it went past him to the right field grass. Neither Suhr nor Vaughan chased the ball, so Cavarretta got home and Jurges wound up at second with a double to his credit. Lee singled to center, scoring Jurges, and went to second while Blanton tossed out Hack. Herman singled past third. Handley captured the ball but bounced it past Suhr, Lee scoring and Herman reaching second. Collins tapped to Blanton.

These Runs Did It.

The Cubs' eventual margin of victory was accomplished in the seventh. Cavarretta doubled and Jurges was hit by a pitched ball. Cavarretta stole third and Handley became so angered and expressive over the de-

REDSKIN ROOKIES STEAL SHOW IN CAMP CONTEST

3,800 Brave Heat to See Aerial Show.

BY GEORGE STRICKLER.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Ballston, Va., Aug. 21.—The temperature here today was 94 degrees in the shade. And they sold standing room for a football game, an intrasquad practice exhibition between two groups of Washington Redskins.

A turnout of 3,800 fans, who sweltered in a blazing sun, indicates the importance Washington fans attach to the Redskins' participation in THE TRIBUNE'S annual All-Star game. Two bands played, marched up and down the gridiron in intricate formations and gave frequent renditions of the Redskins' official song. But what the crowd was interested in was how good are the Redskins and what chance do they have to win in Soldiers' field on the night of Aug. 31.

Rookies Stand Out.

The game itself amounted to a sixty minute scrimmage under competitive conditions with new men fighting for permanent jobs and rookies stealing the show. Assistant Coach Roy Baker's Ballston Braves defeated Head Coach Ray Flaherty's Redskins, 13 to 0. New men figured prominently in both scores.

Both touchdowns were results of passes, one an interception. Baker's team, which held the upperhand throughout the first quarter, scored its first touchdown on a forty-two yard pass, Dick Tuckey to Hal Bradley, after Tuckey, a rookie full back, from Manhattan college, had made the first sizeable gains of the day with dashes of seven and eight yards off tackle. Midway in the third period, Bradley intercepted a pass by George Karamatic of Gonzaga, and returned it twenty yards to the 12 yard line, where he lateraled to Vic Carroll, the Braves' center, then cleared the way for Carroll to go over for the touchdown. Capt. Turk Edwards place kicked the extra point.

This Tuckey Will Do.

Tuckey and Bradley played starring rôles. Tuckey was the only back on either side who was able to gain behind the inept blocking which characterized the contest. He hammered through a veteran line repeatedly and fought his way by the secondary for half a dozen first downs. He gave an excellent demonstration of passing, completing several other tosses in addition to the one on which Bradley scored. His longest run, and tops for the game, was twenty-four yards inside tackle.

Bradley and Bob Masterson, ends on Baker's team, stood out. Masterson, from the University of Miami, whom the Bears traded to the Redskins for a guard, broke up play after play against a backfield which included the veterans Riley Smith, Erny Pinckert, and Karamatic, the man expected to take Cliff Battles' place.

Hartman Leads Attack.

Bill Hartman, a rookie from Georgia, who has not been in camp long enough to know all the signals, gave a surprisingly fine exhibition, leading the Flaherty team's attack. The other player on Flaherty's team who gave a noteworthy performance also was a rookie, Wee Willie Wilkin. Willie had his troubles on offense, where he was faced with veterans well schooled in the tricks of line play, but on defense, where his charging tactics and tremendous strength compensate for a lack of finesse, he conducted himself as an all-time All-American.

Two casualties resulted from the game. Don Irwin, veteran full back, who came to the Redskins after the 1936 All-Star game, suffered a knee injury in the first quarter. It was diagnosed as a pulled tendon, but he is expected to be back in uniform by midweek.

Ed Justice, another veteran back, sustained a shoulder injury. He will be sent to a hospital for an X-ray tomorrow morning.

Sammy Baugh, the Redskins' passing master, played part of the first quarter, remaining long enough to attempt eight passes, completing four.

Two more scrimmages are planned by Flaherty. One will be held Wednesday and the other on Friday. Flaherty expects to have the roughspots ironed out by Friday and hopes for a satisfactory performance before the squad leaves here for Chicago on Saturday afternoon.

Two former national champions, Elmer Schneider Jr. of St. Louis and Eddie Pabst of Milwaukee, battled for the Midget class lead in two heats. Pabst took first, with Schneider a close second. The hydroplanes covered a one and one-quarter mile oval course. Summaries:

GALE WINS STAR RACE

Gale, Harry Nye Jr.'s racing sloop, won over a starting field of 44 Star class yachts in the opening event of the Sheridan Shore Yacht club's annual race week yesterday off Wilmette harbor.

The yachts started in a wind of about four miles an hour and completed the course in a calm. Gale, with Skipper Nye at the helm and his brother Americus as crew, was first to drift across the finish line. Its elapsed time was 2 hours 31 minutes and 27 seconds.

Phil Upton, sailing his new Sanderling, finished in second place and Twin Star, sailed by Lockwood M. Pirie and Mrs. John T. Pirie II., was third. Parader, Holt Thomas' entry which will begin defense of the Great Lakes Star championship this morning off Wilmette, was fourth.

Nancy Home First.

Nancy, the Kimball-Railton syndicate R class sloop, was first to finish in the Chicago Yacht club's third and final race of the Commodore's cup series. Its elapsed time was 2:06:28. Yankee, Ed Schnabel's R boat, was second in 2:09:16.

The first of a series of three Sunday races for Jackson Park Yacht club dinghies was won by a catboat sailed by Mr. and Mrs. Ed Buker. Sailing a club one design dinghy owned by Fran Byrne, they finished the five races that were held with a total score of 25 points. The dinghy sailed by William Christianson, and owned by former Commodore Fred Weston, was runner-up with 23 points.

VELOZ, YOLANDA AWAIT PROFIT ON RACING STABLE

Not Discouraged Despite 2 Emphatic Defeats.

BY FRENCH LANE.

Frank Veloz, who has been dancing a straight program with Yolanda for quite a while now, had his face buried in the form chart of Saturday's third race at Washington Park. It wasn't the top of the chart he was studying, either. His eyes were centered on a name at the very bottom of the chart.

The name of the horse was Veyo. And the owner's names alongside it were Veloz and Yolanda. Veyo, for the second time—and he has run only twice—came in an enthusiastic last in Saturday's endeavor.

We expected Mr. Veloz to have a sheepish expression upon his face after a perusal of the form chart. But not so. Mr. Veloz glanced up happily, full of predictions of what Veyo will do tomorrow afternoon when he again goes into action against other horses that never have won a race.

A Considerable Investment.

The above mentioned two experiences are the only tangible results that this new firm of race horse owners, Veloz and Yolanda, has got out of an investment that is considerably higher than $25,000. The two dancers were bitten by the race horse bug at Saratoga while they were playing an engagement there last summer. Between shows one night they strolled down the street past the sale pavilion where the annual yearling auctions were in progress. They dropped in.

"Frank had too much folding money in his pocket," Yolanda explains. "Before I could get him out of the pavilion he had bought two horses, paying $15,000 for them. Very graciously the next morning he cut me in on a half interest."

It's Upkeep That Costs.

Although their band of racers was small the new proprietors hired their own trainer, a couple of exercise boys, a couple of other handy men to see that the horses were always physically fit, and they bought a lead pony. Thus the upkeep has been tremendous. And horses that finish last do not provide much work for the payoff men in the race track treasury department.

The second horse, Veolanda, is growing so fast that her racing debut has been delayed. But Veloz is confident that if worst comes to the worst he can teach his own horses how to run. Doesn't he play the piano, the accordion, compose music, dance, paint, draw, box [with headgear], and golf in the low seventies?

And don't little boys catch birds by putting salt upon their tails? But don't get the wrong impression. There never has been a more enthusiastic horse firm than that of Veloz and Yolanda. "We don't care how it comes out on paper," says Yolanda. "We're having a lot of fun."

Spiders Win 100 Inning Game in 8 Hours, 78-61

The Spiders softball team defeated the Kline All-Stars in a 100 inning marathon game at Rosedale field yesterday. The score was 78 to 61. Each side used two pitchers. The 100 innings were completed in eight hours.

again at 4 o'clock to continue drills for the Redskins. The squad yesterday was joined by Whizzer White, Colorado's great half back. White flew into Chicago by plane.

Perhaps the greatest problem of the coaching staf this year is to select the men who will bear the burden against Washington. The sixty-six players on the squad are more nearly equal in ability than in any other year. It has been difficult to select the first three players for each position.

Three Great Passers.

So far Cecil Isbell, Jack Robbins, and Don Heap have appeared to advantage in passing. The records of these boys at Purdue, Arkansas, and Northwestern, respectively, will bear comparison with what Baugh accomplished at Texas Christian. Baugh must be conceded to be better, but in one game these All-Stars may surprise the Redskins' defense.

In addition to the triple threat backs and the blocking backs, there are several of these All-Stars who may be given a chance to break up the game by one quick dash from scrimmage. Jim Coffis of Stanford, outstanding in returning kicks; Andy Farkas, speedy runner and fine pass receiver; Rudy Gmitro, splendid at picking his way through a broken field; Duke's Elmore Hackney, who excels because of the same ability, and Pinkey Rohm of Louisiana State are in this group.

Popovich Leads Kickers.

Milton Popovich of Montana, now assigned to full back, is the best of the kickers for height and distance. The All-Stars also have Andy Uram, Frank Patrick, and Isbell. The squad has splendid reserve strength and this factor may be all important a week from Wednesday evening.

Won't Be Long Now, Hunters! Sept. 1 Is Date

BY BOB BECKER.

In just a little more than a week cornfields and other cultivated lands in the Chicago area are going to hear the first booms from shotguns, a cannonading that heralds the approach of the waterfowl season.

According to federal regulations and the state game code, the shooting may start on Sept. 1, the opening day of the dove season. In Illinois the state game code also prescribes this thirty day season. Those thin bodied, poor flying birds known as rails also come in for a little bombardment during September.

Oct. 15 Big Day.

After the mourning dove season the next big opening party for the shotgun shooters is scheduled for Oct. 15, when it will be legal in Illinois to hunt coots, ducks, and geese.

The bag limit on doves remains at fifteen for 1938. The regulations say that one may start shooting doves at 7 o'clock in the morning and continue until sunset. The 4 o'clock closing time on ducks does not hold for doves, snipe, or rails. The official announcement from the government definitly defines these shooting hours as follows:

"Snipe, rails, gallinules [other than coots], woodcock, mourning doves, white winged doves, and band tailed pigeons may be hunted in season from 7 a. m. to sunset."

No Baiting in Fields.

All baiting of fields used for dove hunting is prohibited under federal law. This has been quite a blow to lots of southern shooters who used to get some great hunting over baited fields. Another interesting regulation added to the federal waterfowl laws this year is one that directly affects the boys who hunt mudhens. It reads:

"The daily bag limit on coot remains at twenty-five, but this year a regulation prohibiting the rallying of these birds for hunting has been added."

No Explanation of Rule.

This reference to "rallying" is in the department of agriculture announcement on the coming shooting season. But so far we have failed to find any further explanation of this regulation. Judging by the way this announcement is worded it will be against the law to run a boat over a lake to scare coots into flight or otherwise round up the birds and get them on the wing so they might swing by shooters and be killed.

PHILLIES DEFEAT GIANTS SECOND STRAIGHT, 8 TO 3

Pound Melton, 2 Others for 15 Hits.

New York, Aug. 21—(AP)—The Phillies, who waited until yesterday to win their first game of the season at the Polo grounds, made it two in a row today with an 8 to 3 victory over the slipping Giants. They landed on Cliff Melton and two other pitchers for fifteen hits.

Shortstop Dick Bartell of the Giants and Catcher Bill Atwood of the Phillies had a fight in the seventh inning. Atwood bumped into Bartell while running the bases and they squared off until Umpire Beans Reardon broke them up. Reardon himself was accidentally punched while acting as mediator.

cision that he got himself bounced out of action for the remainder of the afternoon. Lee doubled to right center, scoring Cavarretta and Jurges. Hack, Herman, and Collins bounced to Young.

Here's the log of the Pirates' uprising in the ninth: P. Waner drew Lee's second pass and was forced by Rizzo. Vaughan singled to right, putting Rizzo on third. Suhr doubled, Rizzo scoring and Vaughan stopping at third. Young struck out, but Todd singled to right, scoring Vaughan. Jensen batted for Blanton and singled to right, Suhr scoring. Russell then replaced Lee and struck out Brubaker on three straight pitches.

SECOND GAME

The Cubs loaded the bases in the first inning of the second game with none out and gleaned a pair of runs from the situation. Hack walked and went to third on Herman's single to center. A pass to Collins filled the bases. Galan forced Collins, Hack scoring, and Herman got home while Brubaker was throwing out Reynolds. Cavarretta bounced to Suhr.

An infield scratch was all the Pirates got off Carleton until two were out in the third. At this juncture the Pittsburghers got after the Comanche slat a bit and scored a run. Brubaker beat out a tap toward third and went to third on Jensen's single to right. P. Waner singled to center, scoring Brubaker. Rizzo grounded to Collins. Hack got his second pass at the start of the Chicago third. Herman bounced into a double play, after which Collins and Galan singled. Reynolds popped to Young.

Two More for Our Side.

In the fourth the Cubs again loaded the bases with none out and again gleaned two runs. Cavarretta opened with a single to right. Garbark grounded to Young, who threw past Vaughan in an attempt to force Cavarretta, whereupon Phil went to third on the error. Jurges walked, filling the bases, after which Carleton popped to Young. Hack singled to left, scoring Cavarretta and Garbark. Jurges reached third and Hack second when Rizzo made a wide throw trying to find the plate. Herman bounced to Young who got Jurges at the plate. Hack and Herman tried a double steal and Hack was out at the plate.

And Two for Good Measure.

The Cubs wound up the day's offensive with a pair of runs in the eighth. Cavarretta pushed off with a double and scored on Garbark's single to right. Jurges grounded to Vaughan, but both runners were safe when Young dropped Arky's throw. Carleton bunted and forced Garbark at third. Hack singled to center, scoring Jurges. Herman then bounced into a double play for the second time in the game.

With one out in the ninth, Suhr singled to right, the sixth hit off Carleton. Young singled to left, Suhr stopping at second. Todd batted for Berres and whiffed. Tobin batted for Brown and walked, loading the bases. Brubaker then ended the game as he had ended the first, by striking out, only this time it took four pitches to get him.

Clay Bryant, recently indisposed, will pitch the final of the Cub-Pirate series this afternoon, unless he has a recurrence of one or more of his assorted miseries. Jim Tobin is slated to pitch for the Pittsburghers.

The New York Giants will come to town tomorrow for a two game series, the nineteenth and twentieth clashes of the teams this season

PICNIC AT SCHOOL THEY ATTENDED BEFORE CIVIL WAR

200 at Reunion; Three Tell of 3 R's Back in '50s.

Ashton, Ill., Aug. 21.—[Special.]—One hundred and two years ago the pioneer residents of Ogle county built their first school of logs at Lafayette Grove, five miles north of Ashton. They called it the Prairie Star.

There's still a Prairie Star school on the old site. It's still a one room structure, and has only twelve pupils. But its size doesn't represent its historical and sentimental interest to the people of Ogle county, nor to its graduates who have wandered afar.

Today 200 of the old timers gathered in a grove beside the little school building and recalled the glorious days of the past.

Arrow shows location of old school.

Recalls Lessons of '50s.

Present were three elderly folk who learned their reading, writing, and 'rithmetic before the civil war. One is Eugene Clay Ferguson, 89 years old, who returned from Bloomington to attend the annual picnic.

J. W. Watts of Dixon (left), 92 years old, and Eugene C. Ferguson of Bloomintgon, 89, at Reunion.

"It was back in the fifties when I was here," he said. "The country looks a little different, but everything comes back to me here just as it was. This was a fine school. And when President Lincoln called for volunteers seventeen from this district enlisted."

Some of the soldiers came back. Judge J. W. Watts of Dixon remembered them, the fine upstanding upholders of Lincoln and the Union who became members of the G. A. R. and left their characteristic impress on the whole life of the middle west.

Their Third Reunion.

Judge Watts, who is 82, has practiced law at Ashton and Dixon since his graduation from the University of Michigan in 1874. From 1914 to 1934 he was a law examiner for the Illinois Supreme court.

"We never forget what the old log school did for us," he remarked. "This is the third time we've had this gathering, and I'll be back for others—as long as I can come."

Another before-the-war pupil is Mrs. Loretta Yates of Rochelle. She also is 82.

"You know," she said, "the first teacher here was Chloe Clark Cartwright. She was the mother of Judge James Cartwright of the Illinois Supreme court. About 1875 the first brass band in Ogle county was organized right in this school. For forty years no rally or picnic was complete without it playing."

There was but one regret among the three veteran pupils. The other four of their time weren't able to attend. One of them, Edward Hardesty, is the dean. He is 93 years old. His home is only a short distance from the old school, but he's laid up with a broken hip.

LEGION ACCORDS WARM WELCOME TO ITS VISITORS

A rousing welcome was accorded Fred Fraser of Washington, D. C., national commander of the 40 and 8; Lieut. Gov. John Stelle, Col. Hugh P. Scott of the United States Veterans bureau, and Reuben Soderstrom, president of the Illinois Federation of Labor.

Gov. Henry Horner will address the convention tomorrow, along with Daniel Doherty, national Legion commander, prior to the parade of 25,000 veterans.

Eugene J. Early of Chicago was elected grand chef de gare at the annual convention of the 40 and 8 today.

The Legion auxiliary welcomed Mrs. Malcolm Douglas of Seattle, national president, at its initial convention session.

TRAFIC DEATHS DROP AS LIQUOR SALES DECLINE

A parallel between declines in automobile accident deaths and liquor consumption was drawn yesterday by the American Business Men's Research Foundation.

Government figures, the foundation report said, showed that 2,903,112 gallons less of distilled liquor had been consumed during the last seven months than in the same period last year. Meanwhile, it said, beer consumption dropped 92,738,174 gallons in a comparison of the eight months ended Aug. 1 with the corresponding period last year. National Safety council figures were quoted showing a 3,670 decline in auto deaths in the first six months.

Since trafic experts attribute from 25 to 40 per cent of accidents to drinking, said the report, the drop in liquor and beer consumption is an important factor. It estimated that from 1,000 to 1,500 of the 3,670 lives saved resulted from the liquor slump.

CAR KILLS MAN AS HE CROSSES PULASKI ROAD

John Draus, 49 years old, 3616 West 56th place, was killed last night by an automobile when he walked across Pulaski road at 57th street. The driver was Peter Ellis, 3202 55th street.

Edward Mullen, 65 years old, 1543 North Washtenaw avenue, a watchman, was killed last night when he was struck by an automobile as he was alighting from the rear platform of a North avenue street car at Elston avenue. Police arrested the driver, Jacob Fries, 27, of 1244 Wellington avenue.

Trafic in the outer drive was delayed near Wilson avenue early yesterday when an automobile driven by Morris Gerch of 5506 Winthrop avenue crashed against a lamp post. Mrs. Gerch, who is 26 years old, was taken to the Ravenswood hospital in a serious condition. Police said Gerch told them he had fallen asleep at the wheel.

Up to 4 p. m. yesterday 512 persons had been killed by automobiles in Cook county since Jan. 1. Of these, 392 were killed in Chicago, where 12,107 were injured in the same period.

LONG LOST SON COMES TO BURY AN OLD SHERIF

Leslie O'Connor of Batavia will come here today to arrange for the burial of his father whom he had not seen for 41 years. The father was Howard O'Connor, 83 years old. He died Saturday in the Chicago Good News mission, 1539 Harrison street.

"I'm used to bucking bronchos," the old man said when he stopped at the mission seven years ago. "Just give me a couple of weeks to rest up. I was a sherif out west and I'm still hard to beat."

But he stayed on. Recently he was placed on the old age assistance rolls with the aid of the Rev. Edward Hieber, who is in charge of the mission. Before dying he gave the minister the clews that led to the finding of the son.

SEEKS REASONS FOR OBJECTION TO AIRPORT PLAN

What is the reason for the present delay in getting the railroad tracks off the Chicago airport property? Corporation Counsel Barnet Hodes said yesterday he will learn part of the answer today. Railroad officials will meet in his office to state their objections to the proposed ordinance providing for track removal.

"The meeting is being held because the railroads' objections are not clear to us," Hodes said. "Under no circumstances should we permit the railroads to delay this matter. We want to put the ordinance in its final form today."

The railroads involved are the Chicago and Western Indiana, whose tracks are on the airport property, and the Indiana Harbor Belt line, whose tracks are to be paralleled by the C. & W. I. tracks when they are moved. After the ordinance is passed, the city will pay the $800,000 cost of the change.

5 NUNS OBSERVE GOLDEN JUBILEE AS BENEDICTINES

Those who believe the world's turmoil can be evaded by adopting the life of a nun are mistaken. For this we have the authority of Sister Hyacinth. She is one of five devoted women who celebrated their fiftieth anniversary yesterday as members of the Benedictine Sisters of Chicago. The observance was held at St. Scholastica's convent, 7416 Ridge avenue.

"In our order," explained Sister Hyacinth, "we work. We teach or we nurse, and if we don't go out into the world the world comes to us. Our pupils for years brought us their troubles. We are retired from full time duty now, but we tutor and the students still ask our help and advice."

The other celebrants are Sister Agnes, Sister Hedwig, Sister Veronica and Sister Bertha. Sister Hedwig is a nurse and the others are teachers. They took their vows here in a building now attached to St. Joseph's church at Franklin and Orleans streets. Yesterday, after the jubilee mass, they held a reception at the convent. It was attended by hundreds of their former pupils.

HIGHER COSTS CUT EARNINGS OF JEWEL TEA

Net Lower Despite Gain in Sales.

The Jewel Tea company, with operating expenses mounting, had a lower profit for the twenty-eight weeks ended July 16 than for the corresponding 1937 period, the midyear report by M. H. Karker, president, showed yesterday. The drop in earnings occurred in spite of an increase in sales.

M. H. Karker.

The American Smelting and Refining company's semi-annual report showed substantially lower earnings for the first six months of this year, compared with the 1937 first half.

Net earnings of Jewel Tea for the twenty-eight weeks amounted to $693,522, or $2.48 a share. In the first twenty-eight weeks of 1937 the company had a profit of $767,074, or $2.74 a share. Sales increased 3.11 per cent to $12,387,736.

Operating Expenses Increase.

The company reported that operating expenses were 6.22 per cent higher than in the twenty-eight weeks of 1937, chiefly because of larger pay rolls and higher taxes. Wages and taxes amounted to $3,536,533 in the twenty-eight weeks of this year, an increase of 5.88 per cent from the like 1937 period.

Net income of American Smelting and Refining in the first six months dipped to $5,112,668, or $1.53½ a common share after preferred dividend requirements. Net income for the 1937 period was $9,624,998, or $3.38 a share.

Taxes Are Estimated.

The company's estimate of taxes, including income taxes, for the six months was $1,275,237, compared with $4,617,565 in the 1937 first half. Current assets on June 30 were $84,090,871, including cash and government securities of $17,025,191. Current liabilities amounted to $61,339,188.

Nazi 'Explains' Stock Slump; Denies a Crisis

BY SIGRID SCHULTZ.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

KOENIGSBERG, Germany, Aug. 21.—Assertions abroad that Germany is entering upon an economic crisis were denied today by Dr. Walther Funk, minister of economic affairs. He claimed today there is no ground for these "malicious insinuations emanating from anti-German circles abroad." He also assailed "dollar politics," but did not mention any nation by name.

Speaking at the opening of East Prussia's annual trade fair here, Funk claimed that German Stock exchange prices, which tumbled recently, had not declined as severely as in the United States and England. They are still higher than two years ago, he asserted. He gave the following explanations of the recent fall:

1. Sales by Jewish stockholders.
2. Larger money requirements of industry owing to exceptional expansion of industrial production.

Use of Market Limited.

3. Inability of trade and industry to make use of the stock market to the same extent as formerly [because of Nazi policies and restrictions].
4. Disappointment in regard to high dividend expectations. He said the increase of the corporation tax upset these expectations.

Rumors that Jews in Germany would not be permitted to hold stocks were described by Funk as "naturally false." He added, however, that Jews would not be permitted to influence Germany's economy either directly or indirectly.

Funk gave a stern warning that the Nazi economic leadership "will never permit the tasks to which Nazis have set themselves to be adversely affected by any stagnation in their financing."

He charged "dollar politics" is used to fight Germany's economic efforts abroad. He referred to the Nazi trade barter policy.

"Cannot Live Alone."

The Nazis "are striving with all their strength to build bridges across to foreign countries through our foreign commercial policy because we know we do not live alone and cannot live alone in the world," Funk said.

Funk asserted that the barter system's results were an aswer to American Secretary of State Cordell Hull's implied criticism of the system on the ground that such agreements lead to decrease rather than increase of foreign trade.

[In a radio speech Aug. 16 Secretary Hull deplored "economic nationalism" which he said throttled international trade and resulted in "tactics of the mailed fist." Later a German official urged a barter arrangement between Germany and the United States, but Washington officials gave the plan a cold reception.]

The number of nations exhibiting at the Koenigsberg fair—Poland, Turkey, Hungary, Bulgaria, and the Scandinavian and Baltic countries—were cited by Funk as examples of increasing German foreign trade relations.

COMPETITION IS HELD BEST CURB ON BIG BUSINESS

Leaders Tell 'Good and Bad' of System.

New York, Aug. 21.—(AP)—The National Industrial Conference board said today a survey indicated a predominant view that free competition and economic laws effectively would control the size of big business. The board is a research organization supported chiefly by large corporations.

The consensus of executives, the board reported, was that government intervention should be used to regulate the size of business units "only where monopolistic and price-fixing agreements exist."

"It was the majority opinion," the board said, "that large-scale enterprise offers many advantages and economies, particularly in industries such as the steel and automotive, where a large capital investment is required. It was the majority opinion also that in many activities business has grown unwieldy and uneconomical.

See Dangers of Collectivism.

"Most business men are apparently alive to the danger of government collectivism or socialism if business units in all fields tend to reach the size of public rather than private enterprises.

"It was generally agreed that as the size of business units increases the trend is toward business collectivism, and the next step is governmental collectivism or control of all business activity.

"As to the extent to which governmental control should exist, various suggestions were made by business men, as follows: the dissolution of big business into smaller units should be accomplished by governmental coercion, if business does not act voluntarily; the government should formulate a code of industrial ethics to control labor policies, monopolistic practices, surplus profits, and executives' earnings; maintenance of free competition and abolition of price-fixing agreements are governmental functions.

Call Competition Sufficient.

"Other business men maintained that free competition and economic laws are sufficient to purge industry of undesirable elements, without the intervention of government."

Cited in the arguments for large-scale enterprise were: "mass marketing, with more extensive advertising and advantages in reciprocity, leads to increased sales by big business. Also the greater stability, mass purchasing power and assembly-line production techniques of large companies often result in lower prices to the consumer.

"It was generally thought that large operations showed greater price stability, with tax economies and more efficient management contributing to substantial profits and a net gain in national income."

Disadvantages Cited.

Mentioned as "bad features" were: "Big business, with its concentration of power, tends to disregard public opinion and to sap the independent spirit of individually controled business, while big companies spend lavishly on public relations to influence popular esteem, according to some opinions expressed to the conference board.

"A general opinion expressed was that big business offers serious disadvantages in absentee management, unfamiliar with local conditions, that top executives have little or no contact with employés and that in labor relations and flexibility of control smaller business units offer decided advantages."

Bucket Shops.

Investors' Guide: Please explain the workings of what is known in financial circles as a "bucket shop." Also advise if they are legal.—W. A. F.

Answer: Webster's dictionary defines a bucket shop as a place where bets are made in the form of orders or options based on current exchange prices of stocks, grain, etc., but without any actual buying or selling of the property.

The term is loosely applied to almost any form of illegal dealing in securities or in commodity, futures. One form of bucket shop operation is the artificial rigging of a market for a stock in which there is a very limited trade.

The bucket shop operators get control of a relatively large block of the stock and boost the price by fake purchases and sales between themselves. Sales are then made to the public, often on a basis of 50 or 60 per cent down and the remainder to be paid later. After all the shares are disposed of on this basis, the operators withdraw from the artificial market and let the price drop back to normal.

Naturally, the buyer is not likely to come in to pay the rest of the purchase price when the market price has fallen below what he has already paid. The bucket shop does not have to deliver the stock certificates until they are fully paid for, and, knowing in advance that they will never be called for, it has never executed the purchase orders but simply "bucketed" the money paid in.

ILLINOIS CENTRAL JULY REVENUES RISE TO $1,343,805

The Illinois Central system yesterday reported that its July net railway operating income was $1,343,805. This was an increase of $513,389 from the $830,416 reported for July, 1937. Net operating income is that remaining after deductions for operating expenses, taxes, equipment and joint facility rents.

The road's July railway operating revenues were $8,375,919, a decline of $733,377 from the July, 1937, figure.

Seven months' net railway operating income was $6,945,726, a decrease of $725,976 from the $7,671,702 reported in the first seven months of 1937. The 1937 figure included $1,579,083 credit from cancelation of 1936 retirement tax accruals. Seven months' operating revenues were $57,973,205, a decline of $7,716,323 from the corresponding 1937 period.

Number of New Freight Cars on Order Increases

Washington, D. C., Aug. 21.—(AP)—The Association of American Railroads reported today that class one railroads had more new freight cars on order Aug. 1 than at any other time this year. The number, 10,234, compared with 5,021 July 1 this year and 38,089 Aug. 1 last year.

Everyday Economics

Sweden—II.

Sweden is often cited as having reached business recovery at least partially through an unbalanced budget. Very few Swedish economists have ever claimed that budgetary deficits were responsible for the recovery the country has experienced.

As a matter of fact, the government did not begin extraordinary expenditures until the business upturn had already begun in 1933. The 1934 budget was the only one to be greatly off balance. Loans floated in 1933 and 1934 were short term loans, to be retired within seven years. Because recovery progressed more rapidly than expected the loans were retired in four years.

The total budgetary deficits during the four depression fiscal years ending June 30, 1932, to 1935, amounted to 330,000,000 kroner, or $84,150,000. More than a third of this was covered by surpluses of the preceding two years and the remainder has been wiped out by treasury surpluses in the fiscal years 1936, 1937, and 1938.

STRUCTURAL DEMAND AIDS STEEL INDUSTRY; OUTPUT UP SLIGHTLY

Steel ingot production last week was estimated yesterday at 41½ per cent of theoretical capacity by the magazine Steel. This was a gain of 1½ points over the preceding week's rate. Output in the Chicago district rose 2½ points to 36 per cent.

Principal support to the steel market is coming from miscellaneous buyers and from structural shape and plate work, the publication said. It commented that "the first indications of the expected late summer revival are being felt."

The automobile industry is expected to be the principal determining factor in the trend of steel production during the autumn months, Steel said.

Building and heavy construction work is taking an encouraging volume of steel at present, the trade journal continued.

Steel pointed out that even with the sharp improvement during July and thus far in August in steel operations, few companies have yet approached their "break even" point.

Scrap prices sagged a little more last week. Steel's composite of scrap prices declined 29 cents to $14.29 a ton.

FILM PRODUCERS MAKING THREATS TO QUIT MEXICO

MEXICO CITY, Mexico, Aug. 21.—(AP)—The newspaper Excelsior said today that forty-eight motion picture producers were threatening to leave Mexico because of CTM [Confederation of Workers of Mexico] demands which they consider impossible to accept.

The newspaper said the CTM wants collective contracts both with producers and owners of studios where motion pictures are filmed, providing:

Production of one picture a year free of charge to carry a socialistic theme for exploitation of workers.

Traveling expenses for a group of workers, to be named by the confederation, to tour the United States and European countries to study the movie industry.

Ask 10 Million from WPA for Textbook Purchases

Washington, D. C., Aug. 21.—(AP)—The International Allied Printing Trades association proposed today that the WPA allocate $10,000,000 to school districts for purchase of text books.

Wheat Output Again Becomes U. S. Problem

Wheat promises to become as much of a responsibility to the federal government as cotton. The government is accepting the responsibility of selling surplus wheat abroad and at the same time maintaining a domestic price that will satisfy the farmers.

Measures taken to meet the wheat problem are directed toward cutting acreage in 1939 and opening foreign outlets for at least a part of the surplus now on hand. Government loans are also being made to farmers as a means of propping the market.

An allotment of 55 million acres for spring and winter wheat has been fixed for 1939 under the new farm act.

Benefit Payments High.

Benefit payments for farmers conforming to the 1939 acreage allotments have been fixed high enough to insure general compliance, observers believe. Meanwhile the department of agriculture is going ahead with plans for selling 100 million bushels from this year's surplus wheat. Secretary Wallace announced last week that the United States will seek an understanding with Canada on a wheat export policy.

Effective collaboration with Canada is uncertain. The dominion government has accepted the responsibility of paying high prices to Canadian farmers for wheat and the job of underwriting foreign sales.

What steps the two countries could take that would be mutually advantageous have not been made clear by Wallace.

Furthermore, crop authorities point out, Canada and the United States are not in a position to settle the problem alone and the probability of collaboration among all wheat exporting countries is remote.

Glore, Forgan in Group.

Eighty-eight Firms in Group.

The underwriting group headed by Halsey, Stuart includes eighty-eight firms, many of which, like Halsey, Stuart, are Chicago institutions.

Edison directors on Friday announced subscription rights to stockholders to purchase the $39,251,600 of new convertible debentures.

The rights will be issued to stockholders of record Sept. 2 and will expire Sept. 21. One subscription warrant will be issued on each share of stock, entitling the holder to purchase $5 principal amount of debentures.

Earlier Issues to Be Retired.

Proceeds of the new issues will be used to retire 30 million dollars of series C and D 4½ per cent bonds of the Edison company; 25 millions of Public Service Company of Northern Illinois 5 per cent bonds, and certain other publicly owned securities of Edison subsidiaries.

The Chicago Stock exchange has made application to the Securities and Exchange commission to trade in the warants on a when issued basis.

The company completed a similar refunding operation in June in which $37,500,000 of debentures were sold to stockholders.

Day By Day Story of the Experimental Farms

Bang's Disease Tests.

Aug. 21, 1938.

FEDERAL veterinarians are testing cattle for Bang's disease in the United States at the rate of a half million a month. More than 200,000 cattle infected with Bang's disease in Illinois alone have been discovered by the scientific agglutination test during the last four years. These animals were promptly removed from the herds and killed. The animals left in the tested herds still are under observation and are being retested.

Illinois farmers are sharing in the federal indemnity money received for infected animals that are killed. Owners of the animals receive the salvage from the animals at the time they are slaughtered. Then the federal government pays a maximum of $25 for each grade animal and $50 on pure breds. Farmers usually get the maximum allowance.

New Plan in Effect.

The animals are appraised according to the current value of live stock. Special consideration is given to breeding as well as to the value of a dairy animal as a milk or beef producer.

On the first of July a new coöperative plan was put into effect in Illinois under Dr. John J. Lintner, 4101 Halsted street, Chicago, who has charge of the eradication work in Bang's disease, tuberculosis and paratuberculosis.

Under this plan indemnity on Bang's infected animals will be on the same basis as for animals infected with tuberculosis. The federal payments are not to exceed one-third the difference between the appraised value of the animal and the salvage the farmer receives when the condemned animal is slaughtered. As in the past, the federal payment is also restricted to a maximum of $25 for grade animals and $50 for a pure bred animal.

Third Plan Outlined.

Within another year a third plan will be put into effect in Illinois and other states. The new law provides that beginning May 1, 1939, no federal payments will be made to owners of animals with Bang's disease that exceed the payment made by the state, territory, county or municipality where the animal is condemned.

This means that if the work of freeing Illinois herds from Bang's disease is to be continued next year the state must appropriate money to share in the indemnity cost. Twelve states already have provided funds. They are Delaware, Florida, Maine, Maryland, Mississippi, New Hampshire, New York, Pennsylvania, Rhode Island, Virginia, Washington, and Wisconsin.

It is estimated that Illinois would need to appropriate about $300,000 to match federal funds. No testing for Bang's disease will be done in Illinois after May 1, 1939, unless state funds are made available.

Up to July 1 the Bang's disease program was carried on by the federal government as an emergency measure. Since then the work has been classified as a permanent disease control program. It is now administered by the bureau of animal industry along with the tuberculosis and paratuberculosis programs.
